

COOLIDGE HITS PATERNALISM FOR FARMERS

Approves Development of Cooperative Marketing, But Hits Price-Fixing and Tariff Reduction.

BRINGS MESSAGE OF ENCOURAGEMENT

Most Important Proposals in Speech Greeted With Silence—Leaders Divided in Opinions.

Chicago, December 7.—(AP)—President Coolidge came into the middle west today with a message of encouragement for the farmer.

Addressing the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau federation, he predicted that, in spite of past adversities, agriculture as a whole will lead industry in future prosperity. As salient legislative proposals favoring of paternalism, he promised to approve any agricultural legislation "devised in accordance with sound economic principles."

"I propose," he added, "actively and energetically to assist the farmers to promote their welfare through cooperative marketing."

Returning to Capital. Tonight the president was on his way back to Washington. Tomorrow he expects to lay before congress his legislative recommendations, touching, among other things, the agricultural problems which he discussed today.

The president's audience, which packed the ball room of the Sherman hotel and represented farmers of 40 states, listened attentively to the address which he read, with few gestures. A half dozen times he was interrupted by applause, but his defense of the tariff as an aid to agriculture and his arraignment of proposals that the government engage in the marketing of farm products or in price fixing, directly or indirectly, were greeted with silence. At the conclusion of his address, however, the audience rose and applauded.

Stayed Only Five Hours. The president, who was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, stayed in Chicago five hours. After his address, he attended a luncheon given by farm bureau officials, while Mrs. Coolidge was guest of honor at a similar function tendered by their wives. Crowds lining the streets of the business district gave the city's distinguished visitors an enthusiastic greeting as they passed to and from the hotel in an unheated automobile.

One of the passages of the president's address was:

15 Hangmen Under Czar Put to Death

15 Former Executioners Hanged in Cellar of Private House.

Moscow, December 7.—(AP)—A reminder of how the hunter has become the hunted in Russia was provided today by the arrest of 15 former executioners under the czarist regime, charged with having strangled to death at least 500 revolutionists.

The evidence against them, as set forth in the local press, says that they received from $10 to $50 for each execution, and that one of them, a priest named Rosnoff, who officiated at the hangings, received $150 for each prayer on the gallows.

The place of execution is said to have been in the cellar of a private house. There was a large table and on it a chair. Attached to the ceiling was a stout rope from which the victims were suspended when the chair was thrust from under them. Their bodies were then taken secretly to a cemetery nearby.

BEAUTIFUL FRENCH MODEL ARRESTED IN ESPIONAGE PLOT

Three Englishmen Also Seized in Conspiracy To Learn Secrets of French Air Strength.

1,000 FRANCS PAID TO MODEL MONTHLY

Preferred To Sell Secrets of Her Country To Starving as Nurse or Model, She Declares.

Paris, December 7.—Three Englishmen and a tall, beautiful Montparnasse model have been arrested following a spy hunt, which may reveal a sensational foreign implication in a plot to learn the secrets of French air, military and naval strength.

The woman is Marthe Moreuil, whose connection with the plot was revealed through the arrest at Versailles of one of her lovers, Lionel Weir, who was wearing a naval uniform without authorization. From Weir, the secret service progressed to Marthe and then to William Fischer, Ernest Oliver Phillips and John Henry Leather, all of whom denied knowledge of Marthe and her espionage when they were arrested.

Phillips and Leather are native-born Englishmen, but Fischer formerly was a colonel in the Russian army. He became naturalized.

Marthe apparently was the most active member of the spy group. She made several parachute descents in order to establish contact with military and naval airmen and thus to gain entrance to government assignments. She visited most of the larger French ports and there won the hearts of susceptible young officers, in order to learn from them any information they might have regarding experimental aviation and the strength of the air fleets maintained at the various bases.

"I am ready to pay the penalty," Marthe coldly informed the arresting officers.

"I knew the dangers of my profession, but I preferred to sell the secrets of my country for 1,000 francs monthly rather than to starve as a nurse or model. I met Fischer in a cafe and he became my lover. Then, he introduced me to Phillips and thus I gained a month to operate under his direction. I devoted myself to the missions he confided in me."

"I hid my documents in the lining of my coat," Marthe confessed later. "I kept my instructions in a small tube attached to my corset. We used invisible ink in our secret correspondence. When I heard that a writ of arrest had been issued, I destroyed the evidence and hoped to pass the frontier."

Marthe was arrested before she could start toward Belgium. She is a handsome woman, about 24 years old, thin and strikingly dressed.

BRAND PROPOSES BANK ACT CHANGE

Georgia Congressman Would Make Depositors Preferred Creditors Under His Amendment.

Washington, D. C., December 7.—(Special).—Depositors of all member banks of the federal reserve system which become insolvent would be preferred creditors of such insolvent banks under provisions of a bill introduced today by Congressman Brand, of the eighth Georgia district. The bill was referred to the committee on banking and currency.

The bill provides that after full provision has been made for refunding to the United States any deficiency in redeeming notes of the insolvent bank, depositors of insolvent national banks and of branches of national banks, and depositors of insolvent state banks now members of which may hereafter become members of the federal reserve system, be paid in full before any other claims are met.

It then provides that all other adjudicated claims shall be paid ratably dividends by the receiver for the bank from time to time, as far as assets are liquidated. Any balance, after depositors and other creditors are paid, shall be paid to shareholders in proportion to their stock holdings in the bank, it is provided.

"Nick" Longworth Elected Speaker Over His Democratic and Insurgent Opponents.

LIBERALIZED RULES THROWN IN DISCARD

"Young Bob" La Follette and Dawes Are Stellar Attractions as Senate Gets Under Way.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, December 7.—Administration forces quickly took control when the new Coolidge congress convened Monday. Having broken the power of the democratic-insurgent coalition, which dominated the previous congress, the administration leaders executed their opening day program with speed and precision.

Everything is in readiness to receive the president's message, which probably will be sent to the capital by messenger Tuesday.

In the house, the regulars elected Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, as speaker, abolished the liberalized rules of procedure forced on the previous congress by the insurgents, and swung the tax bill into position so that actual consideration of the measure will start Tuesday. To get into such a measure as this on the second day of a session is unheard of in congress.

Only Routine in Senate. In the senate, the routine of the 30-minute session was completed without incident. Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin; Williams, of Missouri; and Robinson, of Indiana, were sworn in, and the case of Nye, of North Dakota, was referred to committee by prearrangement.

Some republican senators indicated that the majority will give no more soothing syrup to young La Follette because he refused to attend the caucus Saturday. Had he attended, he would have been given committee assignments as a republican. Now the republican leaders intend to class him as a party renegade. This suits the young man right well, as he would be ruined back home if word ever got around Wisconsin that he had been taken in by the regulars as one of the boys.

Longworth's election as speaker was assured months ago, and the voting was only a pleasant formality. Longworth received 202 votes; Garrett, of Tennessee, minority leader, 173; Cooper, of Wisconsin, insurgent leader, 13.

As a result of voting against Longworth and opposing a change of the rules, the insurgents will lose their places of rank on the standing committees of the house, most of which are yet to be organized. Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican floor leader, said they would be dealt with individually, and pointed out that two of them had been removed.

Wizard Racer Steers Auto, Runs 50 Miles

Throngs Watch Marvel Pit Strength Against Wills Saint Claire.

John J. Seiler, wizard professional champion runner and walker, Monday established what followers of the cinder path in Atlanta believe to be a world's record for a 50-mile run, when he negotiated the distance steering a Wills Sainte Claire automobile from the side as he ran in seven hours and 21 minutes in the first of a series of endurance and speed feats sponsored by The Constitution.

The 23-year-old athlete trotted beside the machine, guiding it through downtown congested areas; drank 12 bottles of Coca-Cola, which he uses as a stimulant, and ate all the nourishment he took on the entire run, stopping only once. This was at the Steward Shoe company, where he was fitted with a pair of Bostonian shoes, which he used in the long run.

OFFICER IS SHOT AND ASSAILANT SLAIN IN DUEL

Death Battle Waged in Dance Hall When Vinson Tries To Jail Negro in Liquor Case.

PANIC THREATENS AS BULLETS FLY

County Policeman W. A. Vinson, of 66 West Jefferson street, is in a serious condition at Grady hospital, following a pistol duel waged in a negro dance hall in Dooleytown, Rockdale park, in which he shot and killed a negro, named Will "Black Gal" Kelly, after his assailant had wounded him four times.

When she arrived at the hospital to see her husband, Mrs. Vinson told physicians that she had had a premonition of her husband's danger.

"I dreamed that my husband would kill a man, and this morning when he started to work, I pleaded with him to be careful," she said, "I was anxious about him all day and tonight when the telephone rang, I just knew he had been injured."

The pistol duel started when the negro attempted to escape arrest on a prohibition charge. County Policemen Vinson and L. J. Dickerson, who were on duty at the dance hall to keep order, saw Kelly throw a bottle of whisky out of a window, they stated.

Officer Dickerson went out of the hall to get the bottle as evidence, while Officer Vinson advanced on Kelly to make the arrest. Kelly saw the officer approach in his direction, and, pulling a revolver, began shooting.

Three of the bullets struck Officer Vinson, two in the right chest and one in the right arm. A fourth bullet hit Kelly in the back.

CENTRAL AVENUE TO LOSE TRACKS

Power Company Promises Improved Service on Other Lines—Slappery Urges Changes.

Petition of the Georgia Railway & Power company for permission to remove its tracks on the Central avenue line, because they are parallel and in close proximity to three other car lines, was adopted by council Monday afternoon by a viva voce vote.

The company has planned to give a better service on Ormond street and Capitol avenue to Grant park, it was declared by Alderman Oscar Williamson, chairman of the electric and other railways committee of council, which submitted a report unanimously recommending the change.

The measure drew fire from Alderman Carpenter, who said the car line was essential to Atlanta's growth. Councilman T. L. Slappery said a personal investigation had assured him that removal of the tracks on Central avenue would remove much of the traffic congestion on South Pryor and at the same time lay the groundwork for establishment of a boulevard on Central avenue.

Signature of Mayor Sims is all that is now needed to authorize removal of the tracks.

POLICE LAUNCH WAR ON CHRISTMAS CRIME ELEMENT

Round-up of All Suspicious Characters Is Ordered by Chief of Police Jett.

MOVE FOLLOWS LOOTING OF SAFE

Police Seek Yeggmen Who Secured $1,362 From Western Auto Supply Company.

Intensive warfare on criminals who usually broaden their activities at Christmas time was launched Monday by Chief of Police E. L. Jett on the heels of the robbery of $1,362 in cash and checks from a safe in the Western Auto Supply company at 187 Peachtree street.

Chief Jett Monday afternoon issued special instructions to his men to begin a roundup of all suspicious persons, idlers and all who have criminal records who are unable to give satisfactory accounts of themselves.

"Let's get the advantage of the criminal element by jumping into the game first and heading off the usual flare of crime during the Christmas holidays," he said.

Members of the department were told to keep a vigilant eye on skylights, doors, rear entrances and windows and on alleyways, and to arrest all persons lurking about them.

Picture Stars To Open Work On City Movie

Brouland and "Atlanta Romance" Cast Begin Screening Wednesday.

Final arrangements for the start of filming "An Atlanta Romance," the motion picture sponsored by The Constitution which is to be given a run of a week at the Howard theater, were completed Monday when Slim Brouland, star comedian, announced locations for photographing the first scenes.

Some difficulty had been experienced, according to Slim, in deciding upon just which scenes should be shot first, but on Monday final decision was made to start at the Terminal station at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with a view of the long, tall, and slim comedian arriving in this city with bags and baggage.

New German Device To Aid Pilots in Telling Height

WILL PREVENT ACCIDENTS, LIKE AMES DEATH

Berlin, December 7.—A device to protect airmen from accidents such as recently caused the death of a United States mail pilot in Pennsylvania has been perfected by Alexander Behm, a German physicist at Kiel.

Captain John V. Klemann, naval attaché at the American embassy, has sent a comprehensive report of Behm's device to his department in Washington. The contrivance is to guard airmen against the danger of encountering "shoal air" at night or during fogs. With Behm's invention to aid him, an aviator can determine instantly by his height from the ground, thus protecting himself from driving head-on into the rising slope of a mountain or brushing away the undercarriage of his plane in trees when visibility is such that he cannot look from his machine and know whether it is high or low.

Behm's device is called the "Behm echo lot," and makes use of the fact that sound reverberates. It consists of a sending and receiving mechanism. The sender contains a small cartridge at will. Its sound travels to the ground and returns upward where it registers on the receiver. This, of course, is a matter only of moments, and a scale on the receiver registers terms of feet or yards the time required for the sound to travel to the earth and return.

LEADER OF COX CAMPAIGN DIES

Ed H. Moore, Nationally-Known Democratic Figure of Youngstown, Ohio, Taken Suddenly.

Youngstown, Ohio, December 7.—(AP)—Ed H. Moore, nationally known lawyer and democratic political leader, fell dead Sunday night during an attack of indigestion at the home of M. J. Grimes, where he lived here. He had returned home from a trip to Pittsburgh Sunday, and complained of indigestion when he reached the Grimes home. On the way to his room he fell dead.

Mr. Moore's political career included victories in spectacular fights for mayor of Youngstown in the twenties, against candidates supported by the A. P. A.; his mentorship of the candidacy of Judson Harmon for president in the Baltimore democratic convention in 1912; his successful fight to have James M. Cox nominated by the Democrats at San Francisco in 1920 and his efforts in behalf of Al Smith and against the Ku Klux Klan at the New York convention in 1924.

For many years he was democratic national committeeman for Ohio. Mr. Moore was known as a hard-hitting and relentless fighter both in the courts and in politics, with a tenacity which never gave up a cause as lost until the final decision. This trait was exemplified in the San Francisco convention when politicians regarded the candidacy of James M. Cox as hopeless at first. When he finally was nominated, credit for the achievement was given to Moore's unrelenting and single-handed campaign.

After the nomination, Moore declined to be Cox's manager for the

CITY POLICEMEN TO GET SAME PAY AS FIRE FIGHTERS

Sweeping Increases Voted By Council Will Affect All Employees and Heads of Departments.

$100 MINIMUM PAY MONTHLY IS VOTED

Increases Authorized by Council Are Still To Be Passed Upon by Aldermen and by Mayor.

City council Monday afternoon pried open the lid of the city treasury for 1926 by voting salary increases for Atlanta policemen in virtually the same amounts as those given the firemen in last Wednesday's referendum.

Council also adopted an ordinance by Councilman Harry York calling for sweeping increases which will affect each of the 3,000 employees and heads of city departments. This ordinance provides a flat 15 per cent increase for all employees and officials now making between $1,200 and $3,000 a year and a flat 10 per cent increase for all employees and officials who now are making in excess of $3,000 annually.

The third salary measure to receive approval of council also was sponsored by Councilman York. It fixes $100 a month as the minimum wage for all semi-skilled laborers and clerical employees and also fixes $1.75 a day as the minimum wage for common laborers.

Three thousand employees, including the police and fire departments, would be affected by the measures and the annual outlay was estimated by J. Graham West, city comptroller, to provide an increase of approximately $700,000 in pay rolls.

Action on all salary increases must be concurred in by the aldermanic board and later be approved by Mayor Sims if they are to become operative January 1.

Because of the intended absence from the city the latter part of this week of several members of the aldermanic board, that body voted to defer its session until next Monday.

Firemen's Raises Granted. The fourth measure dealing with salary increases was one by Alderman Allen Couch putting into effect the salary schedule voted city firemen at the referendum last Wednesday. It was adopted.

The ordinance fixing the proposed schedules of salaries in the police department was introduced in the name of the police committee and had the active backing of two members, Alderman Claude Buchanan and Alderman Guy Dobbs. The increases provided in the measure are as follows:

RABIES SITUATION TERMED ALARMING

A serious menace to Atlanta is seen in the alarming spread of rabies during the past week, according to

Dr. T. F. Sellars, in charge of the laboratories of the state board of health. Ten Atlantans were treated Monday for prevention of rabies after they had been bitten by mad dogs and seven positive cases of rabies have been discovered among Atlanta dogs during the past week, Dr. Sellars stated.

"The rabies situation in Atlanta is alarming, and is going to get worse unless heroic efforts to stop the epidemic are adopted by city officials," Dr. Sellars declared. He pointed out that the only effective way to remove the menace was by complete enforcement of the city ordinance requiring that licenses be paid on all dogs, and by killing all dogs on which licenses are not paid.

This would rid the city of all stray dogs, it is pointed out, and is the only effective step to prevent a serious situation. Inoculation of all dogs is too slow and expensive a process, according to Dr. Sellars, who added that Atlanta enforces a muzzle law which has always proved farcical in the past.

FIVE CASES OF THEFT REPORTED TO POLICE

Five thefts, involving losses ranging from $10 to $100, were reported to city detectives Monday.

CITY CLUB PLANS DRIVES FOR VOTES

Following receipt of a letter from its "committee on getting out the vote," showing that only a fraction of Atlantans qualified by age to vote are participating in elections, the City club has launched a movement for a comprehensive, city-wide educational registration campaign.

The club has addressed letters to the President's club, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Inter-Civic council and the Federation of Women's Clubs, inviting these organizations to join in the campaign designed to bring out the full voting strength of the city. It proposes that the organizations combine to enlist the head of every club in the city in the movement, and it urges that the drive be a systematic campaign to be followed from month to month.

Lists of persons qualified by age to vote would be assembled and educational matter carried to citizens tending to "arouse them to their responsibility."

The City club estimates that Atlanta has 100,500 white men and women qualified by age to vote, and it points out that the largest registration ever recorded was in 1924, when 28,740 names appeared on the lists, approximately one in four of those over 21 years of age. In the city primary last September—the equivalent of the election—it shows that 1 in 14 citizens entitled to vote, or 8,154, cast their ballots.

Joel Hunter is president of the City club.

TRAFFIC CLUB FAVORS COMMISSION CONTROL

Resolutions approving the placing of all interstate motor transportation companies under jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission were unanimously adopted Monday at the noon luncheon of the Atlanta Traffic Club at the Henry Grady hotel.

Resolutions were presented by the Associated Traffic Clubs of America, and are the same as are being presented to traffic clubs all over the country. It is planned by the national organization to get the question before congress with a view of having the interstate transportation companies placed under control of the interstate commerce commission as early as possible, according to T. B. Curtis, chairman of the local publicity committee.

No opposition was raised at the meeting to the measure, although an amendment was offered placing all interstate transportation companies under the interstate commerce commission. According to Mr. Curtis, there is now no controlling factor among the interstate motor companies and it is planned to place them on the basis with all railroads.

Resolutions to broaden eligibility of membership in the traffic club were passed at Monday's meeting, and reports of several committees were given. J. A. Streyer presided.

A program of music was given under direction of Cliff Durham. Several vocal and instrumental numbers were given. The meeting was well attended and a large number of out-of-town guests were present.

AUTO SUSPENDED OFF RAIL BRIDGE HELD BY BUMPER

Traffic on the Dixie highway at the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad bridge was blocked for some time Sunday afternoon by a large sedan hanging 50 feet above the tracks by its bumper. R. C. Everett, of Indianapolis, Ind., and a negro chauffeur in the machine escaped injury.

According to Mr. Everett, the car was crowded off the bridge by another machine. The bumper of the car was caught in the bridge railing and prevented it from falling. The car is said to have belonged to Secretary Wolfe, of the Indiana State Automobile association, who was a short distance ahead in another car with members of his family.

South Carolina Boy Declared Winner Of Southern Railway Corn Growers Cup

The Southern railway corn cup, a section of the exhibits qualified to compete for it and the judges who made the award. Left to right: John R. Hutcheson, director of extension, Blacksburg, Va.; E. B. Ferris, director of South Mississippi branch experiment station, Poplarville, Miss.; and C. A. Cobb, editor The Southern Ruralist, Atlanta.

Willie Pat Boland, corn club boy of Pomaria, Newberry county, South Carolina, Monday was declared the ace of southern corn growers, and awarded the handsome silver cup offered by the Southern railway system to the producer of the best 10 ears of corn from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, or Kentucky, exhibited at any one of 18 leading state and district fairs held during the past fall.

Can't Stop Joint-Ease

"You can't stop people from buying Joint-Ease for sore throat and cold in chest," writes one of our druggist friends. "They say it's the best ever."

We know that, of course, but please remember that Joint-Ease is for stiff, swollen, painful joints, whether rheumatic or not, and its tremendous sale for that purpose proves that it is the one joint remedy that gets the most satisfying results.

A tube costs 60 cents at Jacobs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere. Just rub it on and in a few seconds it disappears completely under the skin, and relief follows instantly.—(adv.)

The award was made by a committee of agricultural experts, consisting of John R. Hutcheson, director of extension, Blacksburg, Va.; E. B. Ferris, director, South Mississippi Branch Experiment station, Poplarville, Miss.; and C. A. Cobb, editor The Southern Ruralist, Atlanta. The judges met in the office of Roland Turner, general agricultural agent for the Southern, and inspected the 24 exhibits which had qualified to compete for the trophy.

Young Boland's exhibit had won first prize at the South Carolina State fair in Columbia. His name will be engraved on the cup and it will remain in his possession until the winner for next year is announced. In giving out their decision, the judges said: "The committee of judges feel that the exhibits assembled in the Southern Railway corn contest were very creditable throughout and that the Southern railway itself, especially its agricultural service department, is to be heartily commended for this forward step it has taken toward the development of southern agriculture.

Judge To Accept Excuses Offered By Prohi Agents

Judge R. D. Thomas, presiding in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court, Monday night stated that in view of the fact that United States prohibition agents Pete Smith and J. G. Cobb were in Columbus, attending federal court there, when he ordered them arrested for contempt of court for failure to answer a summons, he had accepted the excuse offered by William T. Day, prohibition administrator of Georgia.

The judge had ordered them to be jailed before him Thursday afternoon to answer the contempt charge, when they failed to appear in court as witnesses against J. T. McCarty, alleged violator of the national prohibition laws.

Mrs. Lenora Hayes, a witness in another case, also was ordered arrested and attachments were issued for her and 12 veniremen, who failed to answer summons to court. No disposition had been made of these, it was learned.

Judge Thomas declared that agents, men summoned for jury duty and witnesses were too lax in their duties to the court, and that he was determined to impress them with the necessity of answering court summons.

Persons who trifle with the court, will be fined or imprisoned for contempt in the future," he said.

Atlanta's Progress Described in Latest "City Builder" Issue

One of the most remarkable stories of progress ever recorded is told in six leading articles found in the December issue of "The City Builder," official organ of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, just off the press. The six articles are found, one after the other, in the first part of the magazine.

First comes a description of the great new department store being erected at Peachtree and Ellis streets for occupancy of Davidson-Paxon-Stokes company, affiliated with R. H. Macy & Company, of New York.

Second is a description of a ten-story office building in the heart of the Peachtree street development. It will be located between Cain and Baker streets and will be known as the Norris building. Third is a story of the wonderful new town home being erected on the site of the old Lyric theater by the Atlanta Athletic club.

A half-million-dollar building is being erected at Forrest and Courtland, to house the Atlanta Dental college, the fourth story announces. Another half-million piece of construction, described in the fifth story, is the new unit of the Georgia Baptist hospital, for which first soil has been turned. In conclusion there is an article about the million-dollar mosque and auditorium Xarab Shrine to be erected on Peachtree near Forest de Leon.

It is a magnificent display of Atlanta progress and marks the December "City Builder" as an historic issue.

INVESTMENT BANKERS WILL GET BUSY TODAY

St. Petersburg, Fla., December 7.—Secret committee sessions featured the first day of the 14th annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America here today. Although 18 committees and the board of governors were in session throughout the day, not one word of what business was transacted had leaked out early tonight.

But the convention, it was stated, will get down to open business tomorrow morning. What has transpired in the committee rooms today will be aired on the convention floor either tomorrow or during the next three days of the convention.

Ray Morris, of the banking house of Brown Brothers and company, will be elected president of the association at the morning session of the convention tomorrow, when the unopposed slate of the nomination committee is presented for adoption. Mr. Morris will succeed Thomas N. Dyar, of St. Louis.

Golf was unanimously adopted by the delegation of visiting bankers today. Overcast skies, a chilly breeze from off the gulf, and at one time a drizzle of rain failed to keep the bankers from being bankers. They played the ancient and honorable game and played it well.

122d Infantry Promotions Center Interest of Guard

Promotions and transfers in the 122d infantry, announced at Monday night's regular drill period, centered interest of members of the regiment. With a number of resignations recently in the officer personnel speculation and interest has been high as to officers to be promoted and transferred to fill vacancies.

Colonel Charles H. Cox is out of the city until Wednesday inspecting outfits in the 121st infantry, at Macon, Milledgeville and other middle and south Georgia cities. In addition to commanding the 122d Colonel Cox is adjutant general of the state and the inspection is being made in his capacity as a state official. Lieutenant Colonel Oberdorfer is commanding the local regiment while Colonel Cox is away.

Promotions announced Monday night included John L. Spencer, second lieutenant, to be first lieutenant. He was assigned to duty with company "C," and Second Lieutenant Edward P. Murrah was promoted to be first lieutenant and assigned to Howitzer company.

The following were promoted to be second lieutenants: Charles S. Manning, John L. Moss, Charles Benson Bottoms and John L. Patton.

Checking of property by Captain R. B. Ennis, regular army instructor, continues, while boards of officers are checking and auditing company funds. Major J. G. C. Bloodworth, Jr., summary court officer, continues to handle a large number of cases of absence and other offenses, assessing fines and other punishment under authority of federal laws governing the national guard.

WILL DEDICATE TREE TO KENTUCKY AUTHOR

Dedication of a tree honoring James Lane Allen, Kentucky novelist, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Authors' grove, at the fourth street entrance to Piedmont park. The program will consist of papers on phases of the author's life, read by former Kentuckians, who in some way were in personal connection with the author. Planting of the tree will be sponsored by the first president of the Kentucky club, Mrs. Abner Hord. Those appearing on the program will be the present president of the club, Mrs. Frank Woodruff; Dr. Melton, who held the chair of literature in Emory university for years; Mrs. Ashby Jones, chaplain; Mrs. Julia Cope, who arranged the program; Mrs. Parker A. Hord, Miss Kate Blatterman, Mrs. John Kerkis, in whose home the first Allen novel, "The White Cow," was written; Mrs. W. H. Willson and Mrs. Jack Spaulder, chairman of committee on decorations.

FACE THE FACTS!

The people of Georgia are fired with high enthusiasm as they have never been.

It is but a natural sequence to a survey of other states—neighbors—that have been more progressive in highway construction, and that are reaping today the benefits from their foresight, and from their constructive efforts.

Right thinking Georgians, who have the interest of the state and the welfare of the people at heart, and who think in terms of 3,000,000 people, and are not prescribed to a selfish political horizon, realize that the state must link up her main highways in every section with permanent paving, and must stand up in comparison along with the other states to which people and investment capital are flocking, and in which per capita wealth is phenomenally increasing.

It is this impelling desire on the part of Georgians to place Georgia in her right position that is resulting in a veritable avalanche of county bond issues.

When one stops to think seriously of what the counties are doing the responsibility of Georgia as a state—Georgia's duty in the premises—is dynamic.

It cannot be trifled with, nor halfheartedly met. It presents an emergency.

To illustrate, only recently the following counties have voted highway bonds: Bacon $60,000, Charlton $50,000, Glynn $350,000, Pierce $200,000, Wayne $200,000, Ware $200,000, Muscogee $1,630,000, Macon $100,000, Richmond $750,000, Burke $600,000, Jefferson $250,000, Whitfield $400,000, Habersham $225,000, Hart $200,000, Rabun $175,000, Henry $200,000, Newton $100,000.

Meriwether and Decatur will vote shortly and both, in all probability, overwhelmingly issue bonds, the former for $300,000 and the latter for $500,000.

Bond elections are being agitated in Franklin, Bartow, Gilmer, Peach, Toombs and various other counties.

The sentiment is sweeping the state. It is built upon good sense, sound reason, progressiveness, and the most outspoken opponents of road bonds a few years ago are leading the fights.

The letter of Representative Jones, of Meriwether, in Sunday's Constitution, is an illustration.

Representative Griffin, of Decatur, is making one of the most vigorous and effective road campaigns in his county ever waged by any citizen in Georgia. He formerly opposed bonds.

The present light is that of experience—of study, observation, comparison.

In every instance the bonds have been authorized by the counties chiefly for roads in the state system, and for hard surfacing.

They have been authorized upon the specific predication of federal and state aid.

And yet, under our present system of providing state aid, the available funds have been anticipated for six years or more.

That is unfair to the counties is suiling bonds—it is abusing confidence.

Then what can be done?

The Macon Telegraph answers it—

"It is a false hope that we can pave the roads of the state, no matter how much bonds the countless issue, unless the state makes an arrangement to match the funds of the counties. If we continue under the present system, there is no probability that the roads of the state will be paved in less than 30 to 40 years."

That tells it in a nutshell, and there is no time to temporize with political prejudices, reactionary obstructions and anti-administration factionalists.

If Georgia ever faced an emergency that demanded a sane, conservative plan for crossing a stream, where the high tide of progress has inundated the old ford, that time is now.

There is no getting away from it. The tide will not recede unless Georgia deliberately steps progression in the face, and kicks it out the door.

THE CHANGING TIDE.

President Coolidge has authorized the statement that he draws no distinction between the arms-reduction enterprises of this nation and those of other powers and the League of Nations. His sympathy is with the movement in its broadest aspects, and his hopes, therefore, for the success of any conference contemplating steps for international peace.

In view of this statement, coupled with the cable dispatches from Geneva that the definite call for an arms conference is being prepared, and that the United States will be invited not only to participate, but to take part in the preliminary work, it is obvious that President Coolidge has brushed political prejudices aside, and expects to participate in the fullest extent, even though such a conference must of necessity be an official recognition, and an appreciation, of the organized functions of the league.

It is now expected that congress will adopt a resolution authorizing the president to name an American delegation—and in the face of the irreconcilable groups in both houses.

Thus it may be seen how situations are changing—by contrasting the republican spirit of today with that of 1919-20. The president is to be commended for his broadness and courage of conviction.

SPOKE WISDOM.

Without saying so in so many words, President Coolidge, in his address before the convention of the American Farm Bureau in Chicago Monday, came out pointedly against the McNary-Haughen so-called "farm relief bill." He declared it was not the function of the government to enter the field of buying and selling farm commodities, and fixing prices.

On the other hand, he was just as definite in favoring cooperative marketing and federal legislation looking to the extension of the system through helpful cooperation rather than hurtful restrictions.

He never spoke more soundly. The farmers of the nation—except those of radical thought—will applaud the directness and firmness and the correctness of his views.

CONGRESS BEGINS.

The first day of congress found its hoppers full of new measures, as usual.

Of more than passing interest was a bill by Judge Brand, of the eighth Georgia, providing preferential payments of dividends to depositors of national and state banks belonging to the federal reserve system that may have become insolvent. It is a strong measure in protecting depositors against losses, and therefore in stimulating confidence in banks.

Of nation-wide interest, of course, the revenue bill stood first. It proposes federal tax cuts amounting to a total of $325,736,000 in the next calendar year. It provides relief, to some extent, to every class of taxpayers. The saving of $193,575,000 to income taxpayers next year—on taxes accruing in 1925—is the outstanding relief feature.

Next in importance of a general nature was the rivers and harbors bill, providing a total of $65,980,000 for expenditures in 1926-27—a very slight increase over the appropriation for the current fiscal year.

The bill is disappointing in that it does not provide for any new projects in the inland waterways of the south. These, however, may come in special measures, the present bill being more of a supply measure for engineering maintenance, or work already authorized.

For Georgia the bill carries the following items: Savannah harbor, $634,960 (maintenance dredging or 21, 26 and 30-foot channels, $400,960, and new work on 30-foot channel, $234,000); Savannah river below Augusta, $20,000; waterway Beaufort, S. C., to St. Johns river, Florida, $80,000; Darien harbor, $500; Satilla river, $3,000; St. Marys river, Georgia and Florida, $3,000; Altamaha river, $6,000; Ocmulgee river, $7,500; Brunswick harbor, $100,000.

The Brunswick item is gratifying, but in the connection the thought occurs that if the government would pay more attention to the Altamaha system, what a tremendous water transportation asset this would be, not only to Georgia, but indirectly, through forcibly, to the entire southeastern and gulf sections.

If the angels should come visiting around Christmas week, they'd better check their wings.

Don't overlook the fact that "white mule" also kicks the auto into the ditch, and you can't sue it for damages.

Don't look for any new thrills at Christmas. The old ones, without any trimmings, will make you feel quite at home—and probably stay there for Recovery Week.

Perhaps the world reformers will stop reforming us long enough to let us celebrate the holidays.

Here's the life!
Troubles cannot come to stay;
Joy is sure to spend the day;
Laugh the wrinkles all away;
Here's the life!

Here's the life!

And the birds winds blowing by,

Poetical Stock-Taking.

With the Old Year going out, the prose-poet of The Tifton Gazette finds himself in the stock-taking business, as follows:

"Look again, I would implore you, in the mirror there before you; note the changes of the past year. Do you differ much, from last year?"

"Are you thirty-five or forty? Are you sprightly and covetous? Are you forty-five or fifty? Are you feeling gray and nifty?"

"Oh, it's often true, I take it, that our age is what we make it; yet we may need stronger glasses, with each year-mark, as it passes."

"Yes, we're very apt to find us, as the time slips on behind us, with some business showing that the days of youth are going."

"And if any (let's be truthful), can succeed in keeping youthful, and can prove as well as show it, he's an artist and you know it!"

The Vision.

When you are mastered by your dream
And of its worthiness you're sure;
By and by feel its beatious beam,
By toil compel it to endure.

The world, its riches and its power,
First in some dreamer's vision lay;
The seed must be before the flower,
Can fill with sweets the breath of May.

II.
When you can think and make your thought
Become the servant of your aim,
Go on your task is half-way wrought—
You're trembling on the verge of fame.

Commit your bark unto the tide,
Nor fear through storms to miss the goal;
No honest effort ever died
That took its root within the soul.

III.
When you can work and make your deed
Be seen alone by other eyes;
Yourself hid in the age's needs;
For them a living sacrifice.

Time never can your gifts erase,
From off the page of worth and fame,
All future years your steps shall trace
And praise forever more your name.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

HOW DUMB BELLS ARE MADE.

A New Orleans doctor sent an inquiry to a Washington information bureau about something Dr. William Brady wrote shortly before his death. Probably the doctor had heard of my rather sudden and really unmerited demise in New Orleans and assumed I was dead all over.

He was wrong. I was not dead at all, but just a punch heater trying to carry a favorite joke of the punch heaters to extremes. They frequently tell the victims I am a good as dead—they tell 'em I am a fictitious character, a nom de plume used by the hypothetical medical trust to get medical propaganda to the public. The only trouble with that role is that I say so many mean things about the medical profession the real doctors are reluctant to acknowledge that the own or control me. There seems to be something about my writing that does not attract friends—in fact I have decided I shall not attempt to have a funeral at all, but instead I'll wait for a windy day and quietly take the air, or more accurately, the air will take me. I have taken the air so often in this life that it has become a pleasant change to have it taken when I am through with my writing here.

A good mother who was formerly a teacher and is now a member of the board of education tells how mortified she was when, on visiting the school one of her boys attended, she learned that the teachers considered the boy her backward or dull—in short a dumb bell, as he would be called nowadays. Motherlike, she took the boy to the doctor, who found faulty vision. The boy had astigmatism, and the glasses soon enabled him to catch up with his class and maintain a good record thereafter in his studies.

A lot of "backward" children, "not very bright" in school, are perfectly normal mentally, but so handicapped by neglected physical defects that they haven't a chance.

The new fangled school medical inspection purports to detect such physical defects in the school children and to initiate steps to bring about correction, and this it does in a very limited haphazard way, which is all that we can reasonably expect for the insignificant fraction of school money that is available for medical inspection in the schools.

The backwardness of children with such obstruction to breathing as uncorrected chronic rhinitis, enlarged tonsils or adenoids, has been harped upon so long that a legend has developed in the teacher's mind, to the effect that a certain dulness of expression, particularly open upper lip, narrow jaw and short upper lip and perhaps protruding nose and dark circles under the eyes and a pinched look about the nose, betrays the presence of adenoids. This is true only in a few cases. In most cases of adenoids such a facial picture is not present, and the picture may just as well occur from simple chronic rhinitis, sinusitis, or other nasal obstruction, or from faulty development of the teeth. Unfortunately a good many adenoid operations have been undertaken on such groundless, of course with disappointing effects; on the other hand, a good many children have suffered permanent injury from unrecognized adenoids because they have not shown this legendary "adenoid face."

In schools where school medical inspection is practiced in good faith, of course no note goes home to the parents recommending an adenoid operation unless the physician has himself seen or felt the adenoid enlargement in the space up behind the soft palate. But in schools where the proper medical inspection is delegated to nurses or even teachers, not a few false diagnoses of adenoids are made, and surgeons in clinics where such children are operated upon are misled by the false picture of the child's face.

Second, we now receive 12 cents from gasoline tax, which, conservatively estimated, will amount to $1,000,000 annually. After 1926 we will receive another cent, which will increase state revenue for roads, possibly bringing it up to $3,000,000 annually from the gas tax.

Third, Georgia now receives $2,000,000 annually from the federal government; however, the present appropriation expires in 1926. We expect federal aid to be continued, but the president of these United

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, December 7.—The complimentary dinner is a deep-rooted New York institution. A man goes away, say on a trip to Europe. His friends get together and offer him a testimonial dinner. He comes back and he is feted again. To some theatrical producers life is one testimonial dinner after another. I have my suspicions that some even are engineered by the guests themselves.

Appearances are nowhere more deceptive than in this town. Just because a man in a stormy ulster, black fedora and silver-tipped walking cane carries an imposing satchel, you don't need to get the idea that he is a great lawyer coming away from scoring a tremendous triumph in some sensational court battle. We had one call at our office the other day of whom the office boy, an otherwise quiet unimpressive young rascal, stood so much in awe that he announced his advent in awed whispers. The fellow turned out to be a hawker. His portfolio contained samples of ink. He sold them at retail.

One of the waitresses at the Ritz-Carlton, coming to work in gorgeous fur coat, cocky cloche hat and the daintiest of silk stockings, she always carries an expensive morocco leather music holder with her and I would take her for a budding young prima donna on her way to rehearsal or recital, if I didn't know that the treasure in the satchel is nothing else but the linen apron she wears while waiting on table.

Then of course there are the immaculate gentlemen who ride around in the most expensive imported limousines on certain nights. They are the family chauffeurs, who have a night off and are often allowed to use the boss' car. Many a flapper strolling along with no other thought in mind than to get picked up by a classy wagon did get picked up and discovered to her chagrin the next day or so her gallant escort dressed up in a chauffeur's livery driving madame plus Pekinese.

A fashionable Fifth avenue haberdasher tells me that the latest design in dinner vests has no back, but is just a dainty false front contraption that is fastened by straps in the back.

I made a call at the internal revenue office the other day and fell to talking with one of the chiefs. The man told me that not a day passes when he doesn't need some tax returns with the strangest appended remarks. "Go to hell" is a very mild direction, he said. Many are far nastier.

One fellow wrote in the space allotted to the enumeration of dependents: "I have more children if you want them, but there's no room here to put the other three." The director showed me another letter which started: "Dear Sir, I don't know what to do with this form. After filling out the last one my husband was taken to the insane asylum. I don't want to take a chance."

"Do please forgive me," wrote an old lady, "but let me have my form back. I quite forgot that I let Mr. Moneybags use my garage for three months and received $15 in rent from him." Another blank return was tied to a stone with the advice to the director to tie it around his neck and drown himself. "But as a rule people are honest, some even to the extent of harassing us over the merest trifles," he said.

One of the reasons why I have grown rather fond of moving pictures is because you can see women opening their mouths without hearing them. No use writing me about this. I won't take it back.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

where thousands of people with small lanterns secure the precious light and in their turn distribute it to all the sacred icons of Russia.

French Fascism.

A group of French nationalists have begun to organize for the creation of a militant fascist party in the republic to bring to an end what they please to term "the two years of radical and liberal bungling of the parties of the left." M. Alexandre Millerand, the president of France, who was ousted by Edouard Herriot, is indicated as the leader of the active fascist movement, which is "to operate on Italian lines."

In the manifesto of the new political group we read that "the liberty which France has enjoyed for the past few years is an idle pipe dream, a colossal piece of humbug, which will ultimately lead to anarchy in the state."

As a remedy against the French fascists want to operate on Italian lines. That is to say they want to revert to a system of primitive feudalism as obtains today in the land of Mussolini. They want to suffocate the people that gave the world the French revolution. The scheme is as preposterous as it is criminal. The French fascists will discover that the words of old Pierre de l'Etoile still apply today: "It is as little in the power of all the demons of the earth to curb the French liberty of speech as to bury the sun in the earth or to shut it up inside a hole."

Boer and Briton.

General Herzog, premier of South Africa, quieted the anxieties that are entertained in certain imperial circles in London by remarking that there would be no attempts at secession from the British empire until both the Dutch and the English sections of the population had agreed upon the necessity of such a step. He did not deny, however, that the aim of the Dutch nationalists as ever remains "Los van Engeland" (loose from England).

Though General Herzog's party is mainly composed of Dutch Boers, it is in the majority in parliament, it is realized that a break with Britain at this time would throw the country into the throes of civil war. There are many other pressing problems that need be solved before the Boers can afford to tackle the subject of their independence. The Englishman in South Africa is no longer the "outlander" of Paul Kruger's days. He has shared in the upbuilding of the country and is as greatly taken up with the future of the country as his Dutch fellow countrymen. For the problem of the Union of South Africa is no longer Boer versus Briton, but black versus white, something of far sinter meaning.

My Story of Atlanta

By Sam W. Small

CHAPTER VII.

Eighteen Atlanta.

There are now 17 other Atlantas on the map of North America. Sixteen of them in the United States and one is in Canada in the province of Nova Scotia. The other states that have an Atlanta are Arkansas, California, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio and Texas.

Curious, as well as obvious, accounts are given in some of those towns of how they got the name. All of them have grown up since the war between the states. The first of them was located in Illinois by the veterans of the federal army who had served with General Sherman in the Atlanta campaign and office building by H. I. Kimball, who came to Atlanta from New England during the reconstruction regime. In the center of the building was a great theater auditorium. When the capital was moved from Milledgeville, Atlanta was under military occupation with General Meade in command of the department of Georgia.

The city of Atlanta had agreed to give a site for the new capitol building, with the understanding that this site would be the old courthouse square on Washington street, which is the point at which the present capitol stands. After conferences, however, between the city, state and federal authorities, it was agreed that instead of the courthouse square being given to the state the city should pay to the state a sum of money equal to the valuation of the courthouse square and that the state and the federal government with this money should buy the Kimball Opera House building for use as the state capitol, the building having just been completed. The auditorium was converted into chambers for the house of representatives and the senate, and the state officials located in the various offices in the building in 1868. This remained as Georgia's capitol building until 1891, when the state removed to the present capitol building.

public entertainment for travelers, was the "Whitehall Inn," built and kept by Charles H. White, far out towards our present West End.

A newspaper had made its debut: Masonic lodge and chapter founded; a school established; a "protracted meeting" held for the conversion of the "hell-bound sinners" of the community and church buildings projected; banking agencies erected from Augusta and Macon had opened offices, and the doctors who had "followed the crowd" were men of such ambitious souls that they started to move to establish the Atlanta Medical college.

A foundry and machine shop were erected and was soon followed by a buggy and wagon factory of W. F. Martin. Butcher, baker, barber, colorer and like purveyors to the public's needs were established at once. Increasing population and trade were thus giving the city a momentum that has never diminished. The curious stranger, and often one over to Macon and Craven established a pottery and began to turn out fair stocks of earthenware.

The first brick building went up as the Atlanta hotel, kept by Dr. Joseph Thompson, one the location now occupied by the Kimball House. Up to then, the only "ordinary" or place of States is opposed to name and there is danger of it being continued in a much reduced amount after within a few years physical education in the country. The federal aid will be continued at the present rate and taking into consideration our increased state tax, beginning January, 1926, we would only have a total of $5,000,000 to expend on roads without the county participation after 1926, and during the year 1926 a little less than $4,000,000.

Fourth, if the counties are to participate on a ratio of 25 per cent as expected, then the state would only have a total of $5,000,000 to expend on roads without the county participation after 1926, and during the year 1926 a little less than $4,000,000.

Fifth, we might say, for the sake of argument, that the counties would be willing to let the state expend their money which they have voted at once. That, of course, would make it possible for a big program for one year, but it would mean that the entire resources for the next five years would be permitted by the state next year. It is not a very bright idea.

Sixth, it cannot be denied that the most progressive counties, and those who are able to do so, are voting bonds because they are not content with the state's aid. They are voting bonds for two main arguments: one to carry these local elections, i. e., the 75 per cent of construction costs to be paid by the state, and also to begin with, the state is also expected to refund the county money (25 per cent) later. In other words, rather than stay in the mud these counties are loaning their money to the state largely on the idea of being refunded later. But some counties cannot see their way clear to do this, and in such cases the state must complete the roads for them sooner or later—perhaps considerably later.

It is high time that we Georgians were thinking in terms of Georgia on this road question, and I cannot see how any member of the legislature is not willing to vote the highway road bond issue to the vote of the people.

It should be conceded that no man, or set of men, can be bigger than the state, but it must be conceded that some men seem to be ready to give petty political and personal prejudices above the rights of the people to go to the polls and vote on such a vitally important issue.

Personally, I do not want to see a patchwork road job in Georgia, nor do I want to see progressive counties disappointed and delayed, nor any county left out of consideration and off the road map of Georgia for years to come.

I am more than willing for the majority to rule on this question, of course, and if I am in the minority there is some satisfaction in knowing that some of our mountain counties have already voted road bonds and have their roads very near completion. I don't think that the counties which have turned over their local funds to the state highway department have been disappointed with results, but I cannot get at the heart of the matter.

Furthermore, I claim that Uric Acid is a NATURAL AND NECESSARY constituent of the blood—that it is found in the body of every newborn babe—that without it, life could not live! Strange statements! Yes—to you perhaps, because you have never been told differently.

But my book, THE LATEST MYSTERIES OF RHEUMATISM, just published, tells you the real truth about Rheumatism. Tells what actually DOES cause it and how it is now being successfully treated in all its different forms and stages by entirely new, advanced scientific methods.

The writing of this unusual book is the result of my twenty years' study, experience and research in the treatment of RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, etc., no matter in what form or how chronic. troopers, signal operators, probation officers and members of the woman's bureau, $140 for first year of service, $150 for second year, $160 for third year, $165 for fourth year and $175 for fifth year of service and for years thereafter.

Orme Opposes Raises. Councilman A. J. Orme took an outspoken stand against the sweeping increases, declaring that it looked as though "some one was trying to ram something down the throats of council without giving it consideration."

"I am casting my vote against this measure because I do not believe in voting appropriations until I can see the money to pay them," he said.

An omnibus measure designed to increase salaries in 19 city departments, including a provision to raise the salary of mayor from $6,000 to $7,200 a year, failed of second reading after Councilman York had explained on the floor that it was in conflict with the resolutions introduced Saturday night by city and county public service employees.

The ordinance which was subsequently adopted, granting 15 per cent increases to those making $1,200 to $3,000 a year and a 10 per cent raise to those making in excess of $3,000, was unanimously approved by the city and county public service employees.

Police Raises. Councilman Orme was the only member of the council who was present when the roll was called for the police measure to cast a dissenting vote. Those voting in favor of the police department salary raises were: Councilmen Pennington, Slappey, Allen, Chosewood, Vaughan, Edgerly, Morris, Dowdy, York, Jenkins, Callaway, Cooper, Sudderth, Johnson, House and Saunders.

Absentees when the roll was called were Councilmen Wardlaw, Allen, White, Moore, Reynolds, Russell and Knight.

Parliamentary Tangles. The session which lasted for nearly five hours was marked by parliamentary tangles and heated verbal tilts and at one time Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, presiding, threatened to call City Marshal Walter Hartwell, sergeant-at-arms, to restore order.

The resolution putting into effect firemen's pay increases January 1, was adopted by a vote of 18 to 3, dissenting ballots being cast by Councilmen Orme, Hartsfield and Allen.

Councilman Orme asked the city attorney if favorable action by council meant that body placed itself on record as approving the firemen's pay increases. City Attorney Mayson held that it was merely a matter of form and did not.

Councilman Orme made a strong effort to have the other salary measures referred to the 1926 finance committee but his motion failed because no second was offered.

Sounds Note of Warning. Alderman W. B. Duvall, chairman of the finance committee, sounded a note of warning during discussion of the measure granting sweeping increases to city employees by declaring that "we, as members of this council, were elected by the people," and that he felt "those persons who failed to turn out to register their votes against the firemen's petition at least deserved protection at council's hands."

Alderman Allen Couch also took a determined stand against the passage of the general salary measures. "Because the people voted for the firemen's petition is no indication to me that the people want to see every city employee and highly-paid official raised," he said.

Councilman Orme at this point charged that the "persons behind the sweeping salary increase measure were either playing politics or playing foolish."

The measure fixing $100 a month as the minimum wage standard bore signatures of 27 members of council but all were not present when the vote was taken.

Ford's Position. Alderman Charles M. Ford, in urging adoption of the minimum wage standard, declared "if a man is not worth $100 a month he should be dismissed from the city's service." Councilman Tom Morris also urged adoption of the paper.

Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, in urging passage of the measure granting salary increases to policemen, said "they had jobs equally hazardous, if not more so than city firemen. The policemen had started to circulate a petition invoking the initiative on behalf of themselves, the same as the firemen, but I asked them to withdraw it and they did so. I feel duty-bound to urge the same consideration for the policemen as that accorded the firemen."

Alderman Guy Dobbs urged favorable action on the policemen's salary ordinance on the grounds the police department was under civil service regulations and that one of these requirements was that salaries of the department must be fixed during the calendar year preceding the year they were to become operative.

STOCKADE TERMS FOR INTOXICATED AUTOISTS BEATEN

Council Monday sustained the police committee, by vote of 23 to 7, in its stand opposing an ordinance proposed by Councilman John A. White, providing for a straight 30-day stockade sentence for any automobile driver convicted of driving a machine under influence of intoxicants.

Councilman White moved adoption of the paper notwithstanding the committee's report, declaring that a person who would drive a car under influence of intoxicants was nothing short of a "murderer."

Alderman Claude L. Ashley approved the stand taken by Councilman White. Councilman York, who stated he had never taken a drink of liquor in his life, expressed the belief passage of such a measure would be establishment of a dangerous precedent.

MAYOR IS UPHELD IN FIVE VETOES OF ORDINANCES

Each of five vetoes by Mayor Sims of measures adopted at the preceding council session were sustained by council Monday afternoon, without comment or debate.

The vetoes were of a proposed plumbing ordinance to create a board of examiners and charge fees to all persons engaged in the plumbing business; a measure granting increases to the force in the tax office; an ordinance to increase salaries of clerks in the police department; an ordinance seeking to make Exchange place non-parking at all hours, and a resolution seeking to pay C. J. J. $2,500 for property used in the Hunter street approach to the Spring street viaduct.

WEST END ASKS FOR "WHITE WAY" OF TWO BLOCKS

A resolution by Councilman Wiley L. Moore to establish a "white way" at the intersection of Lee and Gordon streets was referred by council Monday to the electric lights committee.

Councilman Moore said it was the plan to establish a "white way," one block in length on both Lee and Gordon streets.

WORK ON WIDENING OF EDGEWOOD AVE. VOTED BY COUNCIL

Formal action by city council Monday afternoon virtually assured an early start on the proposed widening of Edgewood avenue from North Boulevard to Hurt street.

A measure from the streets committee was introduced authorizing the chief of construction to proceed with the widening of the north side of the street from North Boulevard to a point as far east as funds would permit. One thousand dollars has been appropriated by the city.

The widening will be approximately $50,000, and it is planned to ask the 1926 finance committee to provide for the balance in the January finance sheet.

COACH COMPANY IS VOTED RIGHT TO CHANGE ROUTE

A petition of the Atlanta Coach company for permission to re-route its busses in the business district was adopted by city council Monday afternoon after the traffic committee had offered a favorable report.

The petition asked that the coaches be routed from Spring on Luckie street to Broad street, then to Hunter street to Spring to Mitchell, then to Broad to Luckie to Spring.

Councilman York said merchants favored the change.

CENTRAL AVENUE IS NOW PROPOSED FOR BOULEVARD

An ordinance to make Central avenue, from Fair street to its southern terminus, a traffic boulevard was introduced in city council Monday afternoon by Councilman T. L. Slappey, and referred to the traffic committee.

Mr. Slappey explained this was one of the first steps in his plan, joint action of the city and county, to make Central avenue and make it a cross-town artery.

MUNICIPAL GARAGE IS GIVEN CONTROL OF CITY MACHINES

City council put on second reading and final passage Monday an ordinance giving the present municipal garage supervision over all cars and trucks used by every department except those in the department of water.

Councilmen York and Allen, joint authors, said the measure was drawn in the interest of economy.

ATLANTA TO TAX BAKERY WAGONS SOLICITING TRADE

An amendment to the tax ordinance, fixing a tax of $15 a year on every bakery wagon soliciting trade on the streets up to the number of 10 wagons and $150 a year on all wagons in excess of 10 operated by the same company, was adopted by city council Monday.

CYCLORAMA FREE TO ALL VETERANS OF "LOST CAUSE"

All veterans of the war between the states who can show their badges or other credentials will be admitted to the Cyclorama in Grant park free of charge, under terms of a resolution by Alderman W. B. Hartsfield which was adopted by city council Monday.

The Cyclorama houses the famous painting, "The Battle of Atlanta," and is viewed by thousands every week.

NEGRO MAN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT DYING AT GRADY

Henry Goodman, negro, of West Pine street, is at Grady hospital in a dying condition following an accident Monday night at Marietta and Hunnicutt streets in which he was run over by an automobile said to have been driven by C. H. Patrick, 21, of 100 B Allen street.

Patrick was arrested by Call Officers Johnson and Hughes on a charge of reckless driving. His bond was placed at $500. Goodman's skull and right leg were fractured.

LANGLEY GRANTED STAY OF MANDATE

Cincinnati, December 7.—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals today granted the petition of Congressman John W. Langley, Kentucky, for a stay of the mandate of that court, affirming a two-year sentence in Atlanta penitentiary, on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act. This will afford Langley opportunity to seek a review of his case in the supreme court before his sentence becomes effective.

ATLANTA AVIATION SITE GIVEN NAME "CANDLER FIELD"

A measure by Alderman W. B. Hartsfield formally giving the name of Candler field to Atlanta's aviation site, near Hapeville, was adopted by city council Monday. The municipal aviation committee had recommended official naming of the field at a recent meeting.

COUNCIL ADOPTS REPORT ON VOTE IN REFERENDUM

Official tabulation by election managers of the vote in the referendum last Wednesday on the petition of Atlanta firemen for an increase in salaries, as adopted by city council Monday, showed the following:

For the increase, 5,657.
Against increase, 2,068.

COUNCIL REFERS PAPER TO UNSEAT DR. FRED MORRIS

A resolution by Alderman W. B. Duvall to declare vacant the first ward seat on the board of education, held by Dr. Fred Morris, on the alleged grounds that Dr. Morris had moved his residence from the ward delegation referred to the first ward delegation by council Monday.

Councilman Harry York said he understood Dr. Morris still retained his residence in the ward. Dr. J. J. Duvall said his understanding was that Dr. Morris had either sold or rented his home and was living elsewhere. The first ward seat was held by Dr. Morris, Dr. Pennington and S. A. Wardlaw.

TRUCK PURCHASES WILL BE DECIDED BY 1926 COMMITTEE

City council Monday referred to the 1926 finance committee measures to purchase trucks and four street sweepers for the sanitary department.

The finance committee a few days ago agreed to recommend purchase of the equipment on statement of representatives of truck concerns that they would deliver the equipment at once and accept payment after the first of the year.

COOLIDGE ASSAILS FARM PATERNALISM

dent's speech which brought a round of applause was a reference to his life as a boy on the farm, and his contention that "we cannot stop with the mere acquisition of wealth."

"The ultimate result to be desired," he continued, "is not the making of money, but the making of people. Industry, thrift and self-control are not sought because they create wealth, but because they create character. They are the prime products of the farm. We who have seen it, and lived it, we know."

Will Assist Farmers. With an assurance that his administration will assist farmers in profitably disposing of their products and providing better storage facilities and credit, the president expressed the view that agriculture could thus be placed "on a sound and independent business basis."

"To have agriculture worth anything, it must rest on an independent business basis," he added. "It cannot at the same time be part private business and part government business. I believe the government ought to leave it to the farmer, but it ought to leave it as the support, the benefit and the business of the people."

The president launched into an attack on proposals that the government engage in the buying and selling of farm products, a direct and indirect price fixing with the following observations:

"This would be a dangerous undertaking, and as the emergency is so acute, it seems at present to have lost much of its support. No matter how it is disguised, the moment the government engages in buying and selling, by that act it is fixing prices."

Would Destroy Co-Ops. "Moreover, it would apparently destroy cooperative associations and all other marketing machinery, for no one can compete with the government. Ultimately, it would end the independence which the farmers of this country have."

Other groups, with the advantage over agriculture, must give up that advantage, or agriculture will get equality by law. Court Decision Clears Way For Prosecution of Bribery Charge Against Fall, Dohenys

District of Columbia Court of Appeals Reverses, Monday, Decision of Lower Tribunal.

BY ROBERT D. LUSK.
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, December 7.—With the legal obstacle in the way of continued prosecution swept away, the government is expected to go to the bottom of the Doheny-Fall oil scandal bribery charges in the near future after months of inactivity.

Counsel for Edward L. Doheny, his son, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., and Albert B. Fall, are expected to decide this week their course, in the face of the decision Monday of the District of Columbia court of appeals again opening the sensational case, in which the oil magnates and the former secretary of the interior are charged with bribery in connection with the leasing of the Elk Hills naval reserve in California.

The indictments grew out of the senate Teapot Dome investigation, in which Doheny admitted that his son carried $100,000 to Washington in a

LEROUX TO HEAD AUTO ASSOCIATION

Charles M. LeRoux, manager of the Atlanta branch of the Willys-Overland company, was elected president for the ensuing year and E. G. Beaudry, president of the Beaudry Motor company, first vice president, at a meeting of the Atlanta Automobile Dealers and Allied Trades at the Biltmore hotel Monday night.

Mr. LeRoux had been identified with the automobile industry for the past 15 years, being connected with the Willys-Overland company, and for the past three years as manager and director of sales for the Atlanta branch.

Mr. Beaudry, who succeeds Mr. LeRoux as first vice president, is well known in Atlanta. He was one of the first men in this territory to take on a Ford franchise and is one of the most popular automobile officials in the city. The two officials were unanimously elected on the first ballot.

Other officials named were second vice president, Ed Yancey, of the Stewart-Warner Products service station; third vice president, J. R. Cheshire, of the Coddington-Cheshire company; fourth vice president, J. B. Moore, of the Andler Garage and Battery service; secretary, Waldo Keller, of the Buick Motor company's Atlanta branch; treasurer, J. M. Harrison, of the J. M. Harrison company. Directors elected were George Woodruff, of the White company; R. E. Cullinan, of Rippey Motor company, and E. H. Baughman, of the E. H. Baughman Motor company.

Following the annual report of the executive secretary, C. V. Hohenstein, an entertainment program of vaudeville and musical features was presented by a group of popular local artists.

In 1890 he was married to Emma McKinnier, who died in 1903. Two sons were born to them, Harold and Mark, now practicing law in Cleveland.

HOUSE AND SENATE QUICKLY ORGANIZED

from "key" committees before congress met.

When Longworth was escorted to the speaker's rostrum with "Princess Alice" looking on from the gallery, where she had sat almost daily for many years, all members stood and applauded. Longworth's personal popularity is as great on the democratic side as among the republicans.

Minority Leader Garrett made this clear in presenting Longworth to the house.

The new speaker indicated his determination to increase the political force of his office when, in his inaugural speech, he said:

"I believe it to be the duty of the speaker, standing squarely on the platform of his party, to assist, in so far as he properly can, the enactment of legislation in accordance with the declared principles and policies of his party, and by the same token to resist the enactment of legislation in violation thereof."

Longworth also indicated he does not consider the La Follette insurgents as republicans when he referred to "members of my political party who by their voices have with unanimity elected me."

The return to the old rules gives the republicans better control of legislation. Now they can bury undesirable bills in committee unless a majority of the house decides otherwise. It has been possible under the rules of the last congress for 150 members to force a bill out of committee.

Crisp Attacks Rule

The new rule was characterized by Representative Crisp, of Georgia, author of the abolished 150 rule, as heretically sealing the door of committee where legislation is held and as being worse than no rule at all.

Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, in attacking the new rule, read the names of 71 republicans who had voted for the Crisp rule. When he called the names of Speaker Longworth and Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the rules committee and author of the new rule, the democratic side of the house burst into laughter.

Snell and Representative Tilson, republican floor leader, led the fight for the new rule, contending that it was necessary to protect majority government. It should be difficult to get a bill from committee, Tilson declared. He said the 150 rule had taken control from the only constituted majority of the house.

Tax Bill Comes First

For the next week, the house will be engrossed in the tax bill. Many members will use this measure as the text for political speeches in the house and for amendments intended only for home consumption.

Having been in recess nine months, senators and congressmen gathered like schoolboys back from a holiday. They mingled in good humor, slapping each other on the back, exchanging cigars and stories in the cloak rooms, and representing political antagonisms in the pleasantness of the occasion.

The house presented its usual non-descript, tumultuous picture, with Chairman Madden, the appropriations committee, gnawing at a noon-day sandwich brought in a brown paper bag by a page, with one member rolling around in a wheel-chair and two others working their way on crutches, and the three women members receiving homage.

Nick Is Fashion Plate.
Longworth, the handsomest man in the house and the only one who pays much attention to his personal appearance, was a superb picture of what the well-dressed speaker will wear. Galleries were crowded with women, most of whom came solely to see him and his famous wife.

Senatorial dignity was out in full bloom at the north end of the capitol. Vice President Dawes, scorned the conventional tail coat, but otherwise held himself strictly within the bounds of the formalities.

Young La Follette drew universal attention. He has put aside the collegiate clothes which he wore as his late father's secretary and appeared in a perfectly tailored morning coat, striped trousers, fawn spats and a wing collar, which with his youthful face gave him more the appearance of a groom at a wedding than of the wild, woolly radical he is supposed to be. He marched to the rostrum to take the oath, hooked to the arm of his colleague, Senator Lenroot. The two are bitter enemies politically, and

Grind Promptly

Washington, December 7.—(Special.)—The house of representatives got busy promptly with only 15 absentees reported in the vote for speaker. It was 1:40 o'clock before the clerk reported that "Nick" Longworth had been elected speaker by the solid republican bloc present. He made a brief speech of thanks and promised to be as impartial and non-partisan as a republican speaker dares to be. "Nick" is personally popular with the seasoned democratic members and they generally applauded his fragile and perfunctory promise.

Thirteen republican insurgents refused to vote for him and gave their votes to Congressman Cooper, of Wisconsin, a veteran in the house. The democrats, of course, gave their unbroken votes to that solid and faithful oldtimer in their ranks, Garrett, of Tennessee.

The novelty of this assembling was the presence of three women members—more by two than have sat in the house heretofore. Two of the ladies are republicans and sat well back on that side. The other is a democrat and had an eligible seat on the democratic side.

The republican women are Mrs. John Jacob Rogers, from Massachusetts, on the Atlantic, and Mrs. Julius Kahn, from California, on the Pacific. Both succeeded to the seats of their deceased husbands and were attired in dresses of solemn black. The democratic lady member wore navy blue with white trimming, a lovely corsage bouquet of roses, and was radiant and acutely attentive to the proceedings. She is Mrs. Mary Norton, of Jersey City, has a living husband who is attending strictly to business at the home base.

Mrs. Rogers is a Protestant, Mrs. Kahn is a Jewess, and Mrs. Norton is a Romanist, so that the standard religions of the republic are represented by these elected woman suffragists. The president is out in Chicago "farming the farmers" today and his message will be delivered on his return.

There was no unusual notice taken by senators when Vice President Dawes entered at noon and banged his gavel. The hard-boiled leaders seem agreed to take him as person of course and give no visible token at present that he is leading a crusade against their cherished privilege of free and unlimited hot air distribution.

They heard credentials of new Senators, Williams, La Follette, Robinson and Nye, swearing the three first named and referring the Nye paper to committee on privileges and elections, which will report on it at a future session, either recommending its rejection or that he be sworn in as a legally-appointed senator. There is no consensus at present as to which will be their finding, although impression prevails that Nye will be seated.

If the opinion of Andrew Jackson and some other authorities prevail, that a senator is a federal officer created by the federal constitution and paid from the national treasury, his credentials, under the 17th amendment, are invalid and he will not be admitted, but if the committee resolves that senators are state officers, ambassadors of sovereign states, he ceased husbands and wills attired in must be seated, because the constitution of North Dakota authorizes the governor of that state to fill vacancies in state offices.

If the senate adheres to its own precedent in Frank P. Glass' case from Alabama, having similar conditions as the Nye case, the credentials will be rejected. It is a delicate and important question, and the final decision of it will be looked for with interest in every state that has not yet legislated in conformity with the 17th amendment.

Prohibition Bills Pour Into Hopper In Two Streams

Washington, December 7.—(AP)—Two streams of prohibition bills, the larger wet and the smaller dry, flowed into the house hopper today.

The wet proposals ranged from measures for repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act to legislation of light beer and mild wine.

The dry ones, all designed to strengthen enforcement of prohibition, covered a similarly wide range, embracing bootleggers and diplomats, and many in between.

At one point the two streams met. Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, a wet, and Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, a dry, both introducing bills to place enforcement agents under civil service.

In general, they merged quietly into the prohibition hubbub that has stirred the capital for more than a week, with statements assailing the administration—and the assailants.

All five of the policeman's shots struck Kelly in the face and chest, killing the Negro almost instantly. The crowded dance hall was thrown into an uproar as the bullets sped and for a few moments a general riot threatened.

Officer Dickerson, hearing the shots rushed back to the dance hall and assumed charge of the situation. A Grady ambulance was called. Vinson's condition late Monday night was described as serious, though physicians believe he will recover providing complications do not set in.

Thorough investigation of the shooting is being conducted by county police, and arrests of a number of negroes who were in the dance hall at the time is expected, one in particular being sought as the negro who furnished Kelly with the pistol.

company was discovered Monday morning, when it was found that yeggmen had broken into the establishment, removed the heavy iron door from the safe in the office and looted it.

P. E. Connor, manager of the company, reported the robbery to police, who immediately began investigating. A heavy screwdriver was found by the safe, and a large pinch bar was reported missing from stock, which led police to believe these implements were used in cutting off the door of the safe.

It was believed the thieves first gained entrance to an adjoining vacant building and entered the Western Auto Supply company through a skylight.

The police are investigating an automobile abandoned in the rear of the building. It bore no license tag, and it is believed it may have been used by the yeggmen.

Seiler and Machine He Raced

ing at 9:20 o'clock Monday morning and went directly to the Stewart Shoe company for his pair of Bostonian shoes. After this, he did not make a single stop until the speedometer of the Wills Sainte Claire automobile, which he steered, but which was run in high gear by E. D. Hinds, of the Hinds Motor company, registered 50.3 miles.

The automobile never exceeded eight miles an hour, although it was locked in high gear and the gear lever was removed, showing that the car is capable of enduring a terrific strain for a long period of time. On Mr. Hinds' drive the motor, but Seiler steered the car.

Mr. Hinds was high in his praise of the pluck and endurance of Seiler who he observed during the entire run. He declared that the runner showed marvelous determination, and that sometimes the car was slowed down to about a mile an hour to allow Seiler a moment to jog and rest. The wizard track star set his teeth and came back and forced the machine to speed up again, he added.

Eats on the Run.
Seiler ate "dinner" as he kept one hand on the steering wheel of the Wills Sainte Claire. The luncheon was furnished by Vaughan's cafeteria officials, who were interested intensely in the run and the comfort of the man who had pitted his endurance against that of the machine.

Crowds cheered Seiler as he kept doggedly on. By noon the track star had negotiated half the distance he was supposed to cover, and had dinner. The "Flying Yank" presented a queer sight when he walked in a circle in Vaughan's cafeteria, on Forsyth street, eating a sandwich. Following the sandwich, he drank another bottle of Coca-Cola. A huge crowd collected, almost blocking traffic, to watch the meal "in transit." The race was resumed after the five-minute delay. When the test was over, and Seiler relaxed, he was almost completely exhausted from his exertions.

The 50.3 miles were negotiated at a speed of a little over 6.7 miles an hour, which, under the handicaps of the race, is considered a most unusual accomplishment.

After his rest today, at which time college athletes will be given an opportunity to get "close-ups" of the famous runner, Seiler will hit the trail again Wednesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in a 10-mile competition with the Wills Sainte Claire machine. He will drink Coca-Cola this time, and will wear the Bostonian shoes furnished by the Stewart Shoe company. The car will be locked in high gear for this test also. He will end the test in front of Loew's Grand.

Another Test Friday.
He will rest Thursday, and Friday will stage another 25-mile competition with the man-made perfection of the Wills Sainte Claire car, driven again by Mr. Hinds. Coca-Cola will be taken again as a stimulant in this race, and Seiler will wear the Bostonian shoes, which he declared aided him materially in setting such a good record. This race also will end in front of Loew's Grand.

Seiler then will rest a week before the final and most trying of his stunts. This will be the 70-mile run from Athens to Atlanta against the Wills Sainte Claire machine locked in high gear. He will drink Coca-Cola on this run and wear his Bostonian shoes. The strain will be almost as great on the car as on the runner. Seiler declared, for at no time will it be permitted to exceed six miles an hour in high gear. Mr. Hinds stated that his machine is so mechanically perfect that it could do the entire distance at two miles an hour if it were necessary.

"My physical condition is perfect, and I feel like I am going to do bigger things yet in my other competitions," Seiler said after Monday's event. "The Wills Sainte Claire machine is as nearly perfect as it is humanly possible to make a car. It plugged along Monday, never missing a single firing, and it was so easily steered that it did not cut down my speed much. Contrary to the theory of many famous athletic coaches, I find that Coca-Cola has food value, and is almost invaluable as a stimulant to a long-distance runner."

WHAT I AM UP AGAINST IN TEXAS

know he was still a leader of the thousands and thousands of men and women who believed he had been the innocent victim of gang politics in 1917. They wanted his name and his influence under their banner.

"If you will join us, Jim," they whispered—they did all of their talking in whispers, you know—"if you will join the invisible empire, we will send you to the United States senate. There is no law against your taking a federal position, and we can and we will elect you if you will join the Knights of the Invisible Empire."

My husband's downright refusal to join the organization, his energetic fight against it, his race against the man whom they later recognized as their avowed candidate for the senate, my entry in the race against their openly espoused candidate for the governor's office, my sweeping victory over him in the primary, and my great victory over the man they compromised on with the republicans in the general election—these are not things easily forgotten by the money grabbers who ran Texas for two years.

Is it to be supposed that such men are going to accept gracefully a woman's victory? A woman's administration? A woman who prides herself that she had the advice and the help of the man they could not buy? It is to laugh that the Klan is dead.

Let me relate a little incident that occurred after I entered office. One of the planks of my platform was the vindication of my husband, the removal of the disability placed upon him by that unjust impeachment of 1917. My friends introduced in the legislature a bill providing for such an act. It was on the regular calendar of the house and senate.

On that same calendar was a bill, known in Texas as the anti-mask bill—an act that took the fangs from the Klan serpent, because it took the mask from the faces of men who were ashamed to do their dirty work in Texas in the daytime.

The anti-mask bill was passed finally by the legislature, just two days before the amnesty bill for my husband came up before the house of representatives, having already passed the senate.

The anti-mask bill came down to my desk for the signature that would make it a law.

But along with that bill came a thinly veiled threat that amnesty would never be granted James E. Ferguson if the anti-mask bill became a law.

My answer to them was to sign the anti-mask bill 15 minutes after it got to my desk.

Then it was a bitter fight, indeed, that our friends waged on the floor of the house for my husband's vindication. The strength of the Klan in the legislature lay in the house. But when the vote was taken, amnesty had been granted, and the Ferguson name had been officially cleared of an injustice stain.

Is it to be supposed that such a slap to their faces will be forgotten? These men had run the state of Texas, unmolested, for two years. They have not forgotten such things in ten brief months, my friends.

Those men who want the legislature to meet to impeach me are the klansmen. Among them are the men who wanted the state to sell the prison farms, move the prison buildings, a move and a sale that would have inflicted great financial loss on the state but would have been of great

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles. Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby. The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

Z. S. Leuchardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Jacobs' Drug Store, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—(adv.)

financial gain to some people. It is currently reported that certain of these leaders conferred with the mighty Dr. Evans in Washington before this petition was signed. How true that rumor is I cannot say. But I do know that Dr. Evans came to Texas almost immediately afterwards, and was in Dallas where these leaders of the movement against me were meeting.

My election and the anti-mask bill did cut off the head of the Klan snake, but the tail of the serpent is still wiggling.

The death of the snake meant thousands of dollars out of the Klan coffers. Is it to be supposed that men, power-mad, and money-mad, will take kindly to cutting off their income—an income so easily gotten? Is it to be supposed that none of that money is left to fight the woman who has beaten them once?

Do you think for one minute that they will forget the fight because it is against a woman. Again it is to laugh.

Did not the speaker of the house of representatives announce that the fact that I am a woman will have nothing to do with impeaching me—if they find cause for impeachment?

Has the Klan ever stopped an outrage because their victim was a woman? I call your attention to the hundreds of women they flogged, they tarred and feathered, they besmirched during their heyday in Texas.

But this time the Klan has added one line to its ultimatum: "If they find cause for impeachment."

They have a long and an arduous search before them. The sun has not set, but it is setting along towards night, and there is a sort of chill in the air down here in Texas, my friends of the invisible empire. (Continued tomorrow.) (Copyright, 1925, for The Constitution.)

NEW REVENUE BILL REPORTED IN HOUSE

to bring the maximum good to all of our people."

The report explained in detail the revisions made in the tax rates, which provides relief for virtually every federal taxpayer, and the changes in administrative provisions, some of which increase exemptions now allowed, while others are designed to stop apparent loopholes for evasion of taxes under the present law.

The chairman served notice he would ask the house to conclude general debate on the measure this week, and then take it up for amendments under the rule limiting debate on each proposal to five minutes for each speaker.

By sending the bill to the senate next week, leaders hope for its enactment by March 1, so advantage may be taken of the reduction in income taxes when first installments are due, March 15.

In addition to Mr. Green's report, Representatives Rainey, of Illinois, and Hail, of Tennessee, democratic members of the committee, submitted "additional views," in which they opposed the heavy reductions in the surtax rates and the increases in personal exemptions, favoring instead repeal of all excise and special levies.

A universal draft act.

Giving cabinet officials the right to participate in house debates, on legislation affecting their departments.

Appropriating $500,000 so that the government can purchase aircraft designs, inventions of private individuals for use in the coast guard, the internal revenue bureau, the department of justice for investigation, the army and navy and other branches of the government.

There were hundreds of special bills in addition.

in charge of the general campaign. Special mention also was made of the work of Major Charles D. Atkinson, Joe Wolfe, Count Boyer and James Morton.

In commenting upon the progress made so far in the campaign, Mr. Hoxsey said that the money to complete the quota was available beyond question; that it was entirely out of the question to operate the 34 agencies comprising the chest upon a single dollar less than the $698,000 asked for and that the campaign would be continued in one form or another until the last dollar of that amount had been raised.

JOANNA

BY H. L. GATES

"That establishes our position toward each other," he observed, and was silent for another interval. "But the situation is that you are going to marry me, nevertheless, because you will have to."

She swayed. Her slender white hand went to her throat again. She knew he was not talking idly. She had gone through one sort of battle with Kenilworth; now, she sensed, she was at the beginning of another, and, in some unexpected way, a more desperate one. She waited for him to go on.

He threw the cigarette into the fireplace and faced her across the table.

"Be pleased to understand the importance of what I am about to say," he breathed. "You have wondered where your money came from; you have wondered why it was given you. I am about to solve for you at least a portion of your mysteries."

"I control the source of your money. I guard its secret and its reason and its purpose. I am the one to whom you have made your accounting, the accounting you haven't known you were making in every whim, in every spendthrift mood of the paths you have elected to follow!"

"Your accounting has been fully made. It is totaled up—by me. I give you now, the results. I demand that you marry me."

"I do not say that I love you, for I do not."

"I do not say even that I respect you, for I despise you, as you have professed to despise me. I shudder before all that you stand for; the abhorrent pretenses of you, the sham of you, the deceit and cheapness of you!"

"Yet I am saying to you that I want you to be my wife. I want you to be my wife as if transfixed."

Joanna had said as if transfixed. Her eyes widened. The brown deepened to black. The scarlet of her lips became ashen. Her hands were hot with the scalding riot of her blood.

Through her brain rang the one phrase: "I am the one!" And in its wake all those other sentences, sharp and bitter, that emerged from his lips like the crashing of cannon on a battlefield, pierced her with the precision of a deadly fusillade. She collapsed into a chair and threw her hands before her eyes as if to shut out a vision.

But Brandon, moving over to her, went on cruelly, relentlessly:

"Of your enormous gift of money you have made a farce. You have used it to enhance—not the world, not society, but the lure, the sense appeal, the woman of you. You have created nothing with your gift, but love: the kind of love that thrills but is nothing of nobility. You have shown what the kind of girl you represent shall surely become if given free."

"But the farce is over, as I said down stairs. The mystery of your money is dispelled—or you may count it as being dispelled. The other mystery, which is that, despite the frailty of you, I want you to marry me."

"And if you do not, there will be no more money. From now on, even tonight! Whatever is yours now gained by fraud must be surrendered. You will be—Miss Twenty-seven over the hills again, if your old job is still open to you!"

"Are you, by any chance, still of the mind not to be my wife?"

The crumpled figure in the chair straightened a little. It tried to rise but sank down again. Its hands fluttered a bit. The girl looked up, at last.

"But I couldn't marry you! I could never be. I don't love you. I said. You wouldn't want me—without! You are playing with me."

"Not playing; very earnest, and final, and definite," he assured her. "As I said, that is the new mystery for you to be baffled by. As my wife you shall keep your money; more money will be given you, perhaps, and you shall, of course, share mine."

Now she gathered strength to stand. She made a little move as if to go up to him, but faltered. Her lips moved as if she were praying for words—words that would save her money, save her dreams, save beauty and luxury and pearls and diamonds and priceless furs—save them and, at the same time, save herself. But whatever her prayers, she heard no echoes of an answer. Her lips moved, stood for a minute leaning against the case—minute looking down into the ribald scene on the dance floor that blurred into a whirling black pool with monsters swimming on the surface.

Suddenly the little body stiffened. A bit of the brown came back into the eyes. Something of the scarlet returned to the quivering lips. She swung around slowly and walked firmly back into the room until she stood so close to Brandon that her body was almost against his.

"I want to keep my money, Francis," she said, her voice quivering but soft and ineffably pleading. "I couldn't do without it now. But I am very much in love with someone else. Very much in love with him. And its the kind of love you would never understand. I don't understand it myself. Nor does he—the man, I mean, that I'm in love with. You'll be kind to me, won't you? You'll tell me why the money was given me? You'll tell me what I've done that's wrong, so that I shall not do it again? I'll be anything you say, if I may have my money, the money that has made life so beautiful—my money and my love!"

"Anything I say?"

Before his sudden thrusting back at her those pleading words, she shrank as if he had struck her. Dazed again she heard him saying: "You may have your love, my dear girl. I would not interfere with that. It's you I want, for reasons and purposes of my own—not your love. I know the one you mean; I know the man to whom you've given the love that neither you nor he understands. Give it. Let him have it. Take him in return if you can win it. All of that shall be the bargain—a bargain of today!"

"The morals of today, you know, and the conventions, are not what they were in the yesterday. You are not the girl of yesterday, nor your kind of love the sacrament that it used to be."

"I am asking you to be my wife—only. To give me yourself only. You may give your love where you want it to be received and take whatever pleasure you in exchange. Surely you, who have played the game of lure, will not shrink before the flame of your very essence kindles!"

Deep colors came and went across her face. She closed her eyes, and then opened them slowly, to quickly shut them. For a moment she seemed about to collapse again, but instantly she recovered herself. When she held her eyes open there was fire in them.

"You mean," she said, "that I may marry you, but love someone else and invite him to love me? That if I do that it will be quite all right, with you, my husband? And that if I do all this, why, I may keep my money?"

"Just that," he answered shortly, "your money, and your love!"

When she did not speak, at once, he went on with a merciless sneer: "The man you are thinking of will not hesitate, I imagine, to take full advantage of such an arrangement. He has shown himself to be amenable to any kind of conditions. While we are here, tonight, he is kneeling before satin slippers that were never worn by your feet. You have not done with him as you would like to have done only because he was afraid to bind himself to you. Free him from that fear and offer him any other way; and I fancy, he will not be so elusive. Perhaps I might add that by giving me yourself, as my wife, mind you, you will not only solve the problem of retaining him—"

She stared into his eyes for a long time, then dropped her head into the chair and sobbed. "Would you mind," she asked, "ordering me something to drink? My throat is parched."

Then she buried her head in her arms.

Without a word, Brandon went to the door and signaled the waiter, who had remained on the balcony in the vicinity of the door. The man hurried away. Brandon returned to the chair and stood by the side of the limp form of the girl. He touched her body relentlessly. She put up her hand in mute appeal for him to be silent. He hesitated, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders, went to the fireplace.

When the waiter brought in the champagne, with glasses arranged on the tray, Brandon signed him to deposit it on the table, and waved him out of the room. Joanna stirred and lifted herself, by bracing against the table, to her feet.

When she looked across at Brandon the quizzical smile that so many people had never understood hovered about her lips.

Brandon went at once to the table and reached for the champagne to open it.

Then he sank, noiselessly, to the floor.

Joanna stood over him and watched the crimson trickle from his forehead, the broken, jagged neck of the champagne bottle still clutched in the deadly grip of her hand.

The flight. Down stairs they danced; danced and shouted wittily, taunting, mocking things at each other. Long, dancing serpentine, thrown from dancer to dancer in caraval abandon, spread a rippling blanket of tawdry colors over the clubhouse floor. And Joanna gazed down—down upon the prostrate form that lay at her feet, the crimson still trickling in ghastly persistence from the white forehead.

After a little while she opened her fingers and the broken wreck of the champagne bottle fell to the carpet. She closed her eyes and lifted her face, from which all the color had fled.

This was a pose Joanna had never struck before. It was one she'd never practiced. She'd never thought of anything quite like it. It was as if she wasn't posing at all—just holding her face toward heaven with her eyes closed as if afraid to contemplate the message that might be written there.

Then she went onto the balcony and closed the door behind her. She nodded to the waiter who stood nearby, flashing him an assuring smile that seemed to tell him she was enjoying herself tremendously and would be coming back in a moment.

Down stairs she skirted the dance floor and threaded her way among the tables to the foyer. The red-coated attendant bowed to her. "It is still black outside, Mademoiselle," he said. "No one could get down, now. It will lift by morning, though."

"Just the same," she returned, "please to call for Mr. Brandon's car. I think he will have one parked in the yard."

The flunky would have protested but Joanna silenced him with an arrogant gesture. Muttering, he went onto the veranda, Joanna following him, and called to a knot of chauffeurs who stood in the mist-dulled glare of a powerful headlight discussing, no doubt, the affairs of their masters. None of these responded. He went then into the yard, and the hunched shape of Antoine and spoke to him. Antoine, wondering, agreed that Monsieur Brandon was his patron.

"Very well then," the attendant commanded, "be so good as to bring your car to the entrance. Your master seems to be remaining. Mademoiselle, his young lady, apparently brings his order for you to take her down the mountain. You can't make it, of course, but that is his and her affair, not mine."

Antoine growled his doubts of such a situation. They were cut short by Joanna herself, who appeared suddenly at the side of the car in the wake of the doorman. "I do not desire to be taken down the mountain," she declared. "Your master, however, requires you, inside, at once. I am to acquire your return, with him perhaps, in the car. Please to go at once."

Both Antoine and the servant were puzzled, but Joanna brooked no tardiness in obeying her commands. To Antoine she repeated: "I bring your master's orders. Attend to them! The attendant here will show you the way to Mr. Brandon. He awaits you in the private room, the balcony."

Daughter of Pioneer Atlantan To Be Guest at U. D. C. Reception

Mrs. Mae Avery Wilkins, of Seattle, Wash., daughter of the late Colonel Isaac W. Avery, of this city, will arrive Thursday to be a distinguished guest at the reception Thursday at which the executive board of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., will entertain at the chapter house on Juniper street. Mrs. Wilkins will share honors on this occasion with Mrs. Oscar McKendle, of Monticello, Ga., recently elected president of the Georgia state U. D. C. Receiving with these two eminent guests will be the officers and executive board members of the Atlanta chapter.

Mrs. Wilkins is president of the Washington state U. D. C. and a return for a visit in her native city will be of sincere interest to the hundreds of friends throughout Georgia who loved and admired her father. Colonel Avery was a pioneer citizen of Atlanta and became a member of the Constitution one year after its establishment in 1868, remaining as such for eight years. He was a writer of national reputation and author of one of the leading histories of Georgia. He was actively engaged in all post-war activities and was an outstanding figure in the war between the states. At the time of his death Colonel Avery was owner of a valuable and priceless collection of war relics, this collection now being in the possession of Mrs. Wilkins. At the recent National U. D. C. convention held in Hot Springs, Ark., Mrs. Wilkins expressed a desire to members of the Atlanta delegation to return these valuable historical interest and importance to Georgia, where they would be preserved, loved and cherished by the Confederate daughters of this state.

The Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., has reserved a room in its chapter house for a museum and already a large number of interesting relics are there on display. No doubt this museum will prove one of the city's show places and will be viewed by hundreds of visitors to the south.

Gieberich Art Exhibition To Continue Throughout Week

Interest continues unabated in the splendid collection of paintings by Oscar Gieberich, of Paris, France, now on exhibition at the Biltmore hotel. All last week the exhibit drew unhesitating and unstinted praise from hosts of art lovers and critics who find especial delight in the announcement that the showing will continue throughout this week.

Mr. Gieberich, who is celebrated for the design and composition of his canvases, has striven to express the emotion which every true artist feels in relation to his picture. For instance, it is not sufficient that a road leads up a hill; it must go beyond it. An open doorway invites an entrance just as a wall not only shelters but discloses. The sighing of the wind in the trees can almost be heard from the structure of the canvas, as the boughs bend over a thatched roof.

The essential quality in modern art is form. The high-keyed primary tones of the late impressionists have become more subtle; in fact they have assumed the part of a fourth dimension and essential element in composition.

Mr. Gieberich painted most of his pictures at Sans Jean de Voight on the picturesque coast of Brittany, a section of France where life is still unspoiled by the harsher inroads of civilization. It is a wonderfully suggestive country! Even on the sunny days, and they are the exceptional ones, the trees are so bent by the wind that it never seems to cease; the houses in the villages are crowded about a protective church and in the country they sit so close to the ground that they have the air of frightened white rabbits.

It is not only this realistic presentation that the painter tries to put in his work but the emotion that is given by a landscape and without which a landscape has no more truth than the portrait which is merely a photographic likeness of the sitter. Cubism, fauvism and other reactionary movements from the old manner of realism are giving way to a saner viewpoint and every salon shows a growth of individualism and independence.

In speaking of the high ideals fostered by Atlanta's Art association, Mr. Gieberich said, "I believe what people need at present in Atlanta is form. The high walls atop some well-lighted and heated building, so that artists can bring many exhibitions to the city, and where art lectures can be delivered. If the people take an interest in the exhibitions of well-known artists and go to the lectures, the specially-built building will naturally follow. But the floor atop some building would meet the present demand and serve to stimulate the movement and to maintain an unflagging interest in art life in Atlanta."

"Guide Into Ansley Park" Offers Suggestion To Help Travelers Find Their Destinations

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

I wonder if there could be a more tantalizing problem on earth than the hydra-headed, mystic-maze monster of Ansley Park directions! To one having been born and bred within its complexities and therefore more or less acquainted with its manifold ramifications of twists, whirled, curves and circles, it is hopeless enough, but to a person who knows not from experience, and is turned loose therein to find his way, verily, it would be better had he never been born!

To a stranger this problem is unsolvable, no chart nor compass being adequate!

Liveried guides should be placed at the entrance along the Peachtree highway at the different points of attack, perhaps being the main ones, with broad bands of lettering on their caps saying "Guide Into Ansley Park." No unquestered spot of foreign travel could be more in need of the like.

Nothing so the kindly hearted, long-suffering residents of these fashionable spots of remoteness think of being hauled out of bed any time of night to direct some travel-worn pedestrian out of this labyrinth of mazes!

Probably, the college men in our midst are the greatest sufferers in this particular. First, they are usually absolutely dependents on street car service and delivery. They, usually, are strangers and have not been warned and, besides, as is often the case, have the lure of some pretty face whom they have met out and whose good—or bad—luck it is to live in this delightful residential section. On meeting the lovely lass and gaining the permission of calling, which she grants upon knowing his standing with his fellows and in his fraternity—this being the identical rating in the social life of the college set, that Dunn and Bradstreet are in the financial world—verbal directions in detail are given him. The poor, unsuspecting youth! The vigor of youth stands him in good stead for, nine times out of 10, if his date is at 8:30, he does succeed in locating the house and spot in said directions in time to see the house-

Emory Student Lost.

On last Friday night, Jack Cochran, popular Sigma Chi, of Emory university, found himself hopelessly lost in the maze of streets and alleys, at 10 o'clock, post meridian, with the rain streaming down and little chance of finding his Peachtree circle date in time for the O. B. X. dance.

The plan was for Jack to meet a party of friends at the home of the girl, Bettie Cole, on Peachtree circle, and together they would go to the Druid Hills Golf club. When he boarded the street car for this destination, he took every precautionary measure known to mankind, in regard to getting off at the nearest place of approach, even asking the conductor to put him off bodily, should the like be necessary, when they came to Peachtree circle.

Little did Jack dream just what a snare and a delusion the word "circle" was in its present application to angles, abutments, street-ends, et al., far was it removed from the continuation of geometrical progression of his acquaintance.

Promptly the conductor dislodged his passenger as per request, which lights snap off for the night, just as he puts his foot on the bottom step!

was at the unoffending south end, and the young man in question does the correct thing of bearing to the left and walking straight ahead, he still would have been fully a wayward one from his objective.

However, it was the opposite he did. The street on which he found himself has one name for one side and a different one for the other. At one end the same time it is Peachtree circle and Fifteenth street. On leaving the car Jack was told to follow his nose. The he did, but his nose happened to get a start Fifteenth streetward and led him directly into the front gate of the Piedmont Drive.

Nothing daunted and upon receiving fresh directions, he started again with the Peachtree circle address as his objective. Curved and angled was his utter undoing. He looked at his watch, 10 post meridian, and hopelessly lost. He wondered if he would reach his destination even by the time the gay revellers returned from the dance! Desperate measures must be employed! To one of the houses in which there was still burning a light, he decided to appeal and so went in to ask directions.

"No, this is Barksdale drive!" Again explicit directions were given. Back into the murkiness he turned. Could he believe his eyes? What was this? As sure as fate here was a yellow cab drawing up to the curb beside him! Too good to be true! At the door handle he jumped like a hungry dog would at a bone. The gruff voice of the cabbie stopped him. "Wait a minute, mister! Can you tell me how to find Huntington road?"

"I'm lost!" shouted the besouled and weary Jack. "What do you think I am? Take me to Peachtree circle, if there is such a place!"

"Can't do it! My fare is waiting to catch the train and I can't find him!"

The cabbie drove on, passing right out on the north end of the circle and leaving the Emory student to be-moan his fate further.

The first thing Jack asked when, at last, he pulled up at the Coles' home just as Elizabeth was driving off with another friend, was: "Isn't there some way to straighten this circle? I have walked every spoke of this wheel for two hours in abject despair!"

Somewhat late Druid Hills was eventually reached.

Home for Christmas.

Christmas, as usual, will bring many joys of many kinds, but rating at the top will be the pleasure of seeing beautiful little Marian Wolff again.

We have missed Marian sorely at the college functions, at which she was always such a charming thing to behold and will be so glad to see her in her accustomed place of great popularity again during the bright holiday season just ahead.

But while we have missed Marian so dreadfully, I wonder if she has had time to spare us even one thought. I've heard of rows of conquests mowed down in the V. M. I. and Washington and Lee ranks, so how could we be as essential to Marian's happiness as she is to ours.

A dangerous thing for the Atlanta admirers of these popular girls it is for them to be sent into the enemy's camp—such as the Virginia territory affords—to "bide for the length of a whole school year. Little could we spare Marian permanently!

Radio-ed But Unsuspected.

Beware of the practical joker! Never before in my life have I admitted that schoolboys were just plain, downright bad; but I am about to be convinced!

When fraternity boys will go to the basement of their own chapter house and connect the telephone wire with that of the radio, connect a loud speaker, gather, en masse, every night at the appointed hour for the conversation of one of their most respected

Home-made, but Ends Coughs In a Hurry

A family supply of dependable cough medicine. Easily made and saves about $2

If you have a severe cough or chest cold, accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any drug-gist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this remedy. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. (adv.)

Fine Arts To Present Artistic Program Today

The Fine Arts club will present Mr. and Mrs. Ongawa in a program of the Far East today at 8 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium. Mrs. W. H. Kiser will preside at the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Robert Alston, president.

The Fine Arts club invites the members of the Drama league and the members of the Junior Music club to present their membership cards, and obtain tickets for 50 cents. General admission is $1. Tickets may be obtained at Phillips & Crew, Marshall's Pharmacy and the Woman's club.

The following program will be presented this afternoon.

Part I: 1—Instrumental; Feast of Lanterns, Gekkin and Traps. A modern descriptive composition. The Feast of Lanterns is one of Japan's great night festivals. The piece describes the ringing of the temple bell, the beating of the drum by the vander of lanterns, the clatter of wooden clogs and the gaiety of the street.

2—Sword Dance: Kojima Takanori, with Samisen. This dance illustrates a famous historical incident. The Emperor Go Dai-Go is being carried away into exile by the usurper Hojo. Kojima Takanori follows the closely-guarded emperor wishing to tell him that an army is being raised for his rescue and restoration. But his efforts fail. At last, while the party is asleep at an inn, Kojima enters the garden and, cutting away some of the bark from a cherry tree, writes upon the white spot the message which only the emperor will understand. Japanese write from the top down.

3—Story: Monkey and Jellyfish. 4—Trio: Down. 5—Ancient love song, Moonlight and Waves, with Samisen.

6—Song, Lady Picking Mulberries, with Gekkin.

7—Folk dances. Formal dance: Genroku Hanna Mi Odori, with songs. Interpretative dance: Cho Cho (Butterflies), with poems. Comic dance: Okami and Hyotoko, with songs.

8—Feminine fashions. Part II: 1—Play—The Fox Woman. The Fox Woman is a cunning red fox which has taken the form of a woman and corresponds to the witch of western legends. This play is an example of the latest development of dramatic art in Japan, following closely the realistic methods of the west.

Miss Elinor Smith To Be Honored.

Miss Elinor Smith, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. C. Smith, will be honored guest at the informal tea Friday afternoon, December 11, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at which Mrs. Smith will be hostess.

The GILDED ROSE

BY MAY CHRISTIE

Monday's father died, and to everyone's amazement it was found that he had left the girl heiress to an enormous fortune. Landis prepared to leave as he does not want to be found dancing attendance on a heiress. He tells her of his departure.

CHAPTER VIII. An Amazing Offer.

"What are your plans?" he asked, wanting to divert her mind from pin-pricks. He moved over till he stood beside her in the doorway. Then he added, looking whimsically down on her! "Now that you're in a position to gratify every wish, where will you start?"

She flushed up. It was evident there was something that she wished to say, but lacked both words and courage.

"I've been thinking—ever since I heard about the money—"

"Yes?" (Poor child, she had no little savior-faire!) "You've been thinking—"

"There's so much of it. I—I never could spend—even a quarter of it. And the talk we had the other day—"

She broke off, biting her lip nervously. He nodded encouragingly.

"You wanted to go out into the world and try your wings. That's the idea. It can easily be arranged."

The flush deepened.

"It wasn't that I meant. Don't you remember—you said—about going off to one of the small European wars—"

He wrinkled his forehead. What was she driving at?

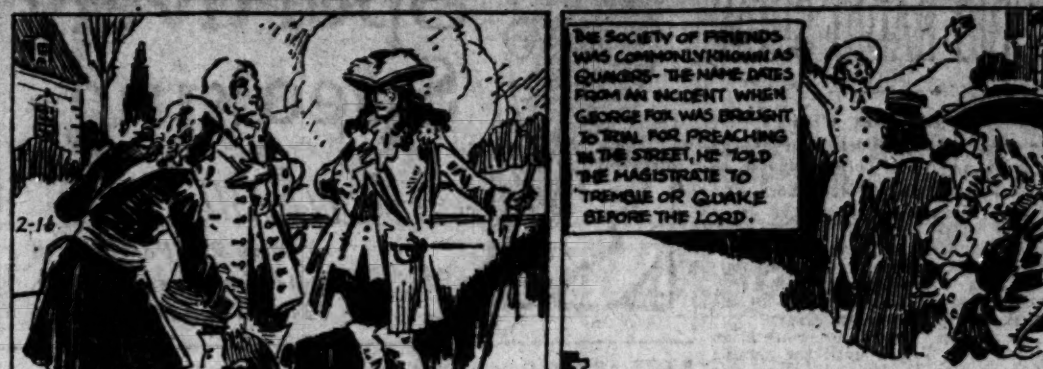

"And your mother? You remember? Neither of you were happy—because of money—not having it, I mean—enough to be happy on—and—"

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

THE STORY OF PENNSYLVANIA BEGINS WITH THAT OF ITS FOUNDER, WILLIAM PENN.

PENN WAS THE SON OF AN ADMIRAL IN THE ENGLISH NAVY WHO STOOD HIGH IN THE FAVOR OF THE KING AND THE DUKE OF YORK.

THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS WAS CONSIDERED AS QUAKERS—THE NAME DATES FROM AN INCIDENT WHEN GEORGE FOX WAS Brought to trial for preaching in the street, he told the judges that he was a Quaker or Quaker before the Lord.

IN 1660 WHILE STUDYING AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY, YOUNG PENN HEARD GEORGE FOX, A QUAKER, PREACH AND WAS CONVERTED TO HIS BELIEFS.

THE QUAKERS BELIEVED IN DRESSING PLAINLY AND SPEAKING HONESTLY. THEY AVOIDED ANY SHOW OF PRIDE AND WOULD NOT QUARREL OR EVEN TAKE UP ARMS IN THEIR OWN DEFENSE.

Your Boy and Your Girl

BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

The Parent Counsellor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address: Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

ARE YOUR CHILDREN YOUR OWN?

What a foolish question? Of course they are. Did you not bring them into the world? Do they not bear your name? Don't you buy their clothes, pay their bills and educate them?

A New Jersey man was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for beating his three-year-old son with a club because the boy fell asleep without his permission. The man flung back his handsome head and laughed long and loud, albeit hollowly.

"You crazy child! Don't ever, ever mention such a thing again! It's so impossible, it's funny!"

Hot tears blinded her eyes. "I beg your pardon. I didn't mean to presume on any way. Believe me, I didn't!"

The laughter stopped as the sudden realization came to Landis Ridgeway that he was in the presence of a very sweet, a very generous and noble character. Few women of that sort had come his way.

With great gentleness he took the young girl's hand in his. "It's so amazing to meet a genuinely disinterested soul these days, that you must forgive me if I knock me off my balance. I'll never forget it, Rosilyn—or you. But you must promise never, never to mention such a thing again."

She bowed her head. "And if you go to New York, as inevitably you will, went on the attractive voice that so soon was going away from her, 'you're to remember that, although it's wonderful, it can be cold and cruel underneath, and full of parasites, only too ready to jump at such a chance as you've just given me. 'Dog eat dog,' you know!'"

"So you've got to keep extremely wide awake. At the same time—'with a rough tenderdeness she had never heard before—'I'd like to think of you as the same simple-hearted, trusting little country girl who so generously offered to help me lame dog over a stile, although he wasn't worth it!'"

A few minutes later he was gone, and Rosilyn gazing with wet eyes down the long ribbon of road his car had traversed.

Mrs. Sheffield Entertains Woman's Bible Class.

Mrs. J. M. Sheffield, Sr., entertained the Woman's Bible class of the West End Baptist church at a "spend-the-day party" Friday at her beautiful home on Peachtree road. The time was delightfully spent in Bible readings and story telling—each vying with the other to tell something that would outshine the preceding one. Even a grandmother in spectacles stopped her Christmas embroidery long enough to tell of a 4-year-old grandson, who being a little late at Sunday school, fished down in his pocket for a coin and asked the teacher if the offering had been served.

A radio concert at the noon hour was drowned by the voices of those merry dames, even the cotton market and other features on the program claimed only passing attention. Japanese place cards with only the given names of each guest were used to designate the places at the table.

Those enjoying the hospitality of Nellie Sheffield, Sr., were: Josephine Becknell, Orie Cates, Carl Pearson, Lula Akers, Pauline Snelgrove, Lola Martin, Eula Thomas, Mamie White, Caroline Pitts, Lena Willis, Louise Stewart, Carrie White, Lucy P. Sear, and Ella McLendon.

CROWDS BOOGING BIG RADIO SHOW

Complete success of Atlanta's first radio exposition, declared to be the largest and finest ever produced in any city outside of New York and Chicago, was assured by the large crowds which thronged the city auditorium Monday to view the most extensive radio apparatus and to be entertained by continuous programs presented from the crystal studio in the center of the auditorium stage.

From the time the convention opened at 2 o'clock until the signing of hour at 11, the auditorium was comfortably filled with radio enthusiasts and at 8 o'clock, when the convention was formally opened with a brief address by Mayor Walter A. Sikes, the hall was packed almost to capacity.

To Last All Week.

For the remainder of this week the convention will be open from 2 to 11 o'clock and a wide variety of entertainment will be provided during the nine hours the radio show will be in progress.

Graham McNamee, chief announcer for WGA, New York, recently visited the exposition, and will be the featured attraction of the program and also will preside at the microphone during the presentation.

More than sixty booths, arranged by local radio dealers who are sponsoring the exposition, contained the very latest radio equipment.

Music of every description is furnished by the best radio talent obtainable. During the week hundreds of records will be played and will perform from the crystal studio.

During the short intervals when entertainers are exchanging places in the studio, an orchestra of the most popular stage provides entertainment. A number of the best orchestras in Atlanta will perform during the week.

The program Monday was opened at 2 o'clock with an organ recital by Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, and at night music was provided by the 112th Infantry band, Georgia National guard.

Speaking

H. C. HAMILTON

Early Pro Football.
Professional vs. Amateur.
The Wandering Jew.

WE ARE indebted to some anonymous correspondent for facts concerning the birth of professional football in Georgia at a time which probably antedates our own figure skating in this state and Ohio. Ordinarily an anonymous correspondent is a person to be ignored, but this gentleman is so obviously correct in his statements that he deserves at least a prominent mention.

The correspondent writes that in Savannah, Charleston and Jacksonville professional football was being played as long ago as 1900. Teams in those cities, according to our informant, played games on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's days.

"THE teams," the information says, "were made up almost entirely of local boys, though for a while the competition was so keen that stars were imported. The members of these teams were both collegians and non-collegians. The life Rambo Cope, formerly coach at Sewanee and Howard, was a prominent member and later the coach of the Savannah team. If my memory is correct, Mr. Sandy Beaver, president of Riverside, was a member of several of the Charleston teams."

After telling us these facts the writer digresses from the historical to the editorial and adds that "the professional game is as much superior to college football as Southern league baseball is to college baseball."

THIS letter-writer's opinion of college football may or may not be correct. Our own opinion of the matter is that college football is the superior article—at least so far as the game has been developed.

The difficulty with professional football, as viewed only from our own humble perch, is that it is too professional. In other words, the defense is so strong that the attack means nothing. Two good professional football teams are equally strong defensively, which means a battle in midfield with the tide flowing neither way. The result is rather dull.

WOULDN'T the Wandering Jew have made a wonderful professional football player? Imagine a man with his reputation for running on the Chicago Bears with Red Grange in our own country. The Grange and Red Britton to run interference for him. The opposing teams never would stop him; or would they?

So far as we know, the famous Hebrew who is doomed to wander about the face of the earth never has paid a visit to the United States, a fact for which we should be grateful, but if he ever does and the professional football players or the Florida real estate operators hear of his days of misery are going to be ended. They will kill him dead with publicity and money.

Kansas Beats Goodrich To Win Lightweight Title

Buffalo, N. Y., December 7.—(By The Associated Press)—Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, tonight won the lightweight championship of the world from Jimmy Goodrich, also of Buffalo, in a boxing match which was a stirring and complete replete with action, the veteran challenger outscored the champion and achieved the goal he set himself to win more than 14 years ago.

The new champion, a sturdy, stocky fighter of Italian descent, has been largely overlooked by the fans for the last 14 years. He is a native of Buffalo, and his victory surprised the experts who had figured that the youth and skill of Jimmy Goodrich would carry him through.

Goodrich was chosen successor of Benny Leonard in an elimination bout last summer without fighting Leonard, who retired. Kansas was defeated by Leonard in three rounds.

Kansas piled up an imposing lead in the first, third, fourth and fifth rounds. The strong "Bulldog" fought back in a determined fashion and refused to relinquish his lead.

The new champion's scores were largely reduced by the absence of the referee, who was called to the face and head which early on.

ed up big cuts about Goodrich's eyes. Neither boxer, however, was hurt and more than once the bell found them too late, hammering at each other viciously.

The bout drew the largest indoor crowd in the history of Buffalo boxing, nearly 12,000.

The judges were George Patrick, of New York, and Thomas Flynn, of Brooklyn. James Crowley, of New York, was the third man in the ring. Tony Russo, Pittsburgh, and Luke Carr, Buffalo, lightweights, fought a preliminary.

In the semi-final Frankie Garcia, of Union, a brother of Bushy Garcia, defeated Charlie Pinto, of Buffalo in a fast six-round bantamweight bout.

Southern League Adopts Valuable Player Award

Memphis, Tenn., December 7.—(By The Associated Press).—The Southern association tonight voted to award a cash prize of $500 and a trophy to the player voted by the eight official scorers of the league as the most valuable player to his club, decided upon a season of 154 games to open April 13 and close September 19, and fixed February 8 as the date for the spring schedule meeting to be held in Atlanta.

A. J. Heinemann, New Orleans; Strawn Nicklin, Chattanooga, and R. M. Weinacker, Mobile, were appointed a committee to draft a schedule for submission to the Atlanta meeting. Mr. Heinemann was named chairman.

Allotment of opening and closing games and the assignment of umpires were deferred to the Mobile meeting. Other matters awaiting disposition tonight included the selection of a schedule committee, the fixing of a date for the spring meeting to permit the clubs to carry 18 players for the first 20 days, 10 thereafter until the first month of the season, and the fixing of the salary limit to be equalized and the increased number of players available through the season would make for better balanced clubs and a higher standard of play.

John D. Martin, president of the league, submitted his annual report of the season at Tupelo, Miss. As a result Mr. Weinacker spent the day in Tupelo while the other seven club owners here devoted themselves largely to formal conferences and banquets.

Mr. Weinacker arrived in time for a night session. Player lists, the league's financial statement, increased allowance for official scorers and a proposal to award a cash bonus and a gold trophy for the most "valuable player" in the league were discussed.

WATLES TO SPEAK TO WRITERS' CLUB

NEW JAIL IS URGED FOR DEKALB COUNTY

Decatur, Ga., December 7.—(Special).—That Dekalb county needs a new jail was the opinion voiced here today by Judge John B. Hutcheson of the Stone Mountain circuit, who presided at the meeting of the county court. He urged the grand jury to consider the proposition, also to consider improvements in the court house. The judge's charge followed the escape here last week of six prisoners from the jail.

T. C. Jackson was elected foreman of the grand jury which is expected to finish its work within a few days.

MAJOR LEAGUE PARKER DAVIS MAGNATES DEFENDS GATHER PROS

New York, December 7.—(AP).—The attack upon professional influences in football and the effect of all-American team selections in emphasizing individualism, launched by Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, found rebuttal today in statements by two gridiron authorities, Foster Sanford of Yale, former Rutgers coach, and Parker Davis, of Princeton, historian of the game.

Their opinions were quoted by the New York Sun as an answer to Mr. Hall's remarks, made at a dinner given Saturday to members of the all-American team selected by the Sun.

Taking issue with Hall's attitude, Davis professed to see no harmful effects in selecting all-American teams or in the growth of professional football.

"If professional football continues to progress," said Davis, "college football will not be injured a particle for the reason that thousands of young men who cannot attend universities will learn to play the game well enough to earn good salaries. So long as the professional game is played honestly and is capable management, hostile criticism is not deserved."

Sanford, although saying he always has been opposed to professional football and while head of Rutgers refused to accept of the services in connection with it, nevertheless expressed the belief that the "pro" game has come to stay. He added that the material for professional teams was to be found outside of college ranks as well as in them and ventured the belief that he could "put together a non-college team that would defeat any of our leading varsity teams."

Sanford also said he saw no evil influence in selecting all-American football players.

"Fundamentalism in football is out of date," he said. "The game has outgrown old fogy ideas."

It appears generally established that both leagues will approve an earlier closing of the season, but not a shortening of the season's schedule. President John A. Heydler, of the National league, favors terminating the race on September 26 in the west and September 29 in the east, thus permitting the world series to get under way October 1.

Several magnates have suggestions for improving world series contests. Barney Dreyfus, of Pittsburgh, opposes Ban Johnson's plan to do away with extra bases and bleachers at the home-stand seats, and suggests to have the open seats screened to prevent outfielders going out of the playing field to fetch fly balls.

Samuel C. Freeman, of Washington, brings with him a proposal to make all future world series free games, with rain checks to be issued for the games. President Heydler, of the National league, and Dreyfus also seek to avoid unnecessary delay on account of rain, the latter's recommendation being having called games played out from the point at which they are stopped with the same lineup.

Still another suggestion to prevent possible postponement of world series games will provide for starting time to be fixed at 1:30 instead of 2 p. m.

Both New York clubs are in the market for players. Manager McGraw, of the Giants, has made no attempt to disguise the fact that he needs a catcher. There were rumors of a trade several weeks ago under which Pitches, Laque and Catcher Hargrave, of Cincinnati, would come here for several New York players, but it failed to materialize. Expectations now are held out for a deal between New York and Philadelphia by which McGraw would acquire Pitcher Jimmy Ring and either Jimmy Wilson or Butch Henline, catchers.

Manager Arthur Fletcher, of the Phillies, was on the scene early today and admitted he was in the market for trades "that will strengthen my club," but said he had not talked with McGraw.

Contrasted with Miller Huggins, of the Yankees, who has announced he is ready to part with most of his veteran stars in order to build up a new machine, Bill Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs, brings a million-dollar check book, with an outlook considerably more optimistic.

Other clubs in the league are looking for players who can involve players, as the Cubs are expected to offer cash only, their business outlook is not so bright as Manager Joe McCarthy might have hoped.

The University of Maryland also will play the Maroons here on October 9.

Fourteen conference games without being hurt, Tim Lowry, Northwestern, left by Captain "Fighting" Tim Lowry, of Northwestern, who wound up his conference football career recently. The condition was that the smokers smoke at least ten cigarettes during the hike.

ALABAMA SIGNS TO PLAY IN CALIFORNIA CLASSIC

John McGraw and Keeler Perfected Hit and Run Play

Coast Seeks Eastern Team

Giant Boss Had Plenty Of Nerve

Following is the fifth article of a series, entitled "Rounding Third," by Hughie Jennings, on his 34 years of major league baseball service. Jennings, discoverer of Ty Cobb, the Georgia Peach, and central figure in some of baseball's biggest developments, writes an interesting history of the national game in this series. He also analyzes the greatest figures of baseball during the last 34 years.

BY HUGH A. JENNINGS
CHAPTER 5.
WHEN I joined the Baltimore team, the man who impressed me most was John McGraw. The first time I ever saw him he appeared a man rather short and rather slight in build. He was extremely aggressive and he had, to all appearances, unbounded confidence in his own ability and faith in himself. He was one of the best lead-off men the game ever had—a good waiter at the bat, a good hitter and a first-class base-runner.

He gave signs of leadership even at that time. While not captain of the Baltimore, an honor that fell to Wilbert Robinson, McGraw had the knack of leadership. He was the most aggressive in an aggressive group, and on the qualities that he had even at that time lifted him to top place among managers. Robinson became his assistant in New York, serving as coach of the Giants' battermen and later on Robinson became head of the Brooklyn team.

McGraw was always strong for team play. He and Willie Keeler perfected the hit and run play. I have seen many good hit and run combinations, but never have I seen another quite so good as the McGraw-Keeler duo.

Was Never Bluffed.
McGraw had nerve and this stood him in good stead. He could not be bluffed, although he frequently ran a bluff on the other fellow. I remember at one time we were playing in Washington. It was a tight battle, with the famous Win Mercer pitching for Washington and having a good afternoon. Late in the game McGraw came to bat with one out and two occupied, two men retired and two runs needed to win. Mercer pitched three bad balls in a row to McGraw. He forebore to pitch another McGraw called for time and got down on the ground pretending to tie his shoe laces. What he really wanted was an opportunity to talk to Mercer. This he did as soon as he got Mercer's attention he told him:

"Well, I got you where I want you. If you give me another bad ball I'll walk and fill bases and the little fellow that follows me (Keeler) will drive in two men and win for us. If you give me a good one I'll hit it myself and drive 'em in. You're gone whatever you do. Now, go ahead and pitch."

McGraw knew McGraw and he knew he was trying to bluff him into giving him a good ball. Also, Mercer felt sure that McGraw did not expect him to fall into his trap and give him a good one. So Mercer figured the smart thing to do would be to do exactly the one thing McGraw would not be looking for and that was to put the ball over. Mercer decided to do it. He sent the ball straight for the heart of the plate, but the ball never got by the plate. McGraw was set. He swung and drove the ball on a line over third base for a two-bagger. Two men scored and Baltimore won the game.

I recall one game between the same teams, Baltimore and Washington, that shows McGraw's ability as a base runner. He was on first with Keeler at bat. Keeler gave the hit and run sign. McGraw was off with the pitcher. Keeler singled to left-center. The left fielder got the ball, looked up and saw that McGraw was too near third to make a play possible so he whipped the ball to second to prevent Keeler from taking an extra base. McGraw was watching the left fielder and as he pulled back his arm to throw to second McGraw hit the extra speed. Touching third on the inside he kept right on going. The shortstop took the left fielder's throw at second, but before he could make the catch and relay the ball to the catcher, McGraw had scored. It was an excellent piece of judgment and nerve.

CRIMSON TIDE HAS WON
ALABAMA MENTOR MAKES WONDERFUL RECORD
24 OF 28 GAMES UNDER WADE

BY BOB MATHERNE
University, Ala., December 7.—(Special.)—Three losses and one tie in 28 grid conflicts—that's the record of Wallace Wade's eleven during the three years that Wade has been coach at the University of Alabama.

These losses came at the hands of Syracuse, Centre college and Florida. The Florida loss is the only conference loss sustained by the Alabama eleven in the past three years. Both Syracuse and Florida defeated a Wade eleven in 1923, the first year Wade was at Alabama, and Centre in 1924 defeated the Tide. Georgia Tech tied Alabama in 1923. Wade has sent eleven into 20 conference battles during the past three years. Eighteen of these were won, one lost and one tied. That's a record for three years which will last at Alabama for some time to come. In these 20 games Alabama scored 540 points to her opponents' 344 points. Listed among the teams defeated by Alabama during this period are Georgia Tech, Georgia, Sewanee, Mississippi A. & M., Louisiana State, Kentucky and Florida, all strong conference teams.

Scored 779 Points.
Against all 28 opponents, Alabama scored 779 points. Syracuse's 23 points in 1923 is the highest score made on an Alabama team in three years by any eleven. Altogether, Alabama's opponents have scored 31 points. Too much credit cannot be given Wallace Wade for his great record at Alabama. It is true that he has had many great stars of the south playing under him but he developed the majority of them. Wade is a believer in fundamentals, work and team play. He believes in brains as well as brawn. The majority of his backs and ends have been little men, but constant skill practice developed them, plus the practices on Denny field, into skillful men. Material has not been over-abundant at Alabama since the Wade regime. Wade has not had plenty of men for his teams. Since he has been here, he has had but three full teams running at Denny field for the entire season. But with what he had, he moulded his eleven and sent them into battle, successfully.

Capable Assistants.
Due credit to his assistants should be given. In Russ Cohen Wade has been one of the most valuable scouts and assistants in football. As a line

'RED' REMEMBERS ECONOMY LESSONS

New York, December 7.—(AP)—Red Grange has not forgotten the economical lessons of his days as a college undergraduate and ice toter in spite of his sudden rise to affluence as a professional football star.

According to his manager, C. C. Pyle, Grange is giving $100 a week for spending money, the remainder of his income being put in an Illinois bank.

"I gave Red a $100 bill, yesterday thinking he might be in need of some change, I asked him if he wanted his hundred," said Pyle. "Oh, no," he answered, "I still got $70 left and the trainer owes me $10."

HORNSBY GETS NATIONAL AWARD

St. Louis, December 7.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, named the most valuable player in the National league during 1925, was purchased from the Denison, Texas, club in 1915 for $750.

He had plenty of pep, but many regarded him as being too light for the big show.

Since that time, Hornsby's career has been a record of success. The 1925 season saw him top the list of National league batsmen for the sixth consecutive time and hit above .400 for the third season in his career. A feat only two other athletes—Jesse Burkett and Ty Cobb—have been able to accomplish. No other National league player has ever held the batting honors six years in a row.

In the eleven years he has been a member of the Cardinals, Hornsby has made 1,016 hits in 5,271 times at bat for a grand average of .363.

During the 1925 season there were only 25 games in which Hornsby went without a safety. In the last six years the Cardinal star has batted an average of .397, with 1,296 safeties in 3,288 trips to the plate. Hornsby also holds the record of getting 250 hits in 1922 beating the old mark of 243 set by Willie Keeler in 1897. He hit 43 circuit drives in 1922. In 1924 he batted .424, which was the highest average for a major league player since Hugh Duffy swatted .438 in 1894.

Hornsby became a real swatter of home-runs in 1921 and in the last five campaigns he has driven out 144 four-baggers for an average of 28.8 a season.

The Cardinal manager has been a much-sought-after athlete. John McGraw offered $250,000 for him and the late Charles Ebbetts offered $275,000.

SIX TEXAS BASEBALL PLAYERS TURN PRO

Six members of the 1924 University of Texas baseball team that set up a modern collegiate record by winning 25 out of 26 games are now playing professional ball. Two of the number are in the major leagues and the others are playing in the prominent minor organizations.

with W. E. Schallenberg, president of the Arrow Pictures corporation of New York. Red will start work on his first picture about March 1, 1926, after completing a transcontinental tour with the Bears.

The only liabilities incurred by Grange during his brief visit here when he also attended a dinner given for the Sun's all-American team and delivered a radio talk, were the ill effects of his frequent charges into the line in yesterday's game, but they will not be sufficient, according to Pyle, to keep the star out of any of his scheduled engagements.

Following the game in Washington tomorrow, Grange and his teammates journey to Boston for a battle with the Providence Steam Rollers Wednesday. Twenty-five games altogether remain on the Bears' schedule, the itinerary taking them to Florida and thence across the country to the Pacific coast, where the tour will wind up about the middle of February.

West May Change Return Game Schedule

Chicago, December 7.—(AP)—The western conference may not carry out its projected experiment of four football teams playing two games with the same foes next fall.

A re-arrangement may be made whereby Minnesota and Michigan and Northwestern and Indiana, carried for double-headers in the schedules, are fixed here Saturday, may meet only once. Return games have not been played by conference teams since the nineties.

Outstanding among the rulings determined on were those limiting football practice to two hours, eliminating of moving pictures by scouts, the four-game conference schedule plan and the turning over to the athletic directors, the details of track meets.

President Howe has received telegrams from all three schools to that effect. Washington state college cannot play since a game is scheduled at Hawaii on Christmas day, and another at the same place on New Year's day. This leaves University of Southern California, Idaho, Oregon agrees Montana and Oregon to be considered. Of this Oregon, U. S. C., is held to be the most likely team.
